WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— The president in his war review to congress today said that the United States seeks "national co-operation" to end aggression and establish international relationships on a permanent basis. He suggested extension of the good neighbor policy to the whole world as the next logical step in the nation's foreign policy.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— President Roosevelt disclosed today that 53 heavy American bombers were lost in the daring raid on the Ploesti oil fields in Rumania and more than 500 men are missing.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt, in a sweeping review of the war, reported to congress today that "definite times and places" have been decided upon for new blows against Germany and Japan which will lead to the complete destruction of all 'malignant forms" of fascism and naziism.

Mr. Roosevelt, in a 5,500 word message to the congress, said he and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and their military staffs have made "specific and precise plans" to strike blows of increasing importance and power against Germany and Japan.

These decisions, he said, include "definite times and places for other landings on the continent of Europe and elsewhere."

Seeking to dispell any idea in the mind of congress or the American people that the end of the war is near, Mr. Roosevelt said "we are still a long-long way from

Marshall's Word Waited; Dad Draft Opposition Grows

WASHINGTON—(AP)—New and vocal opposition to the early drafting of pre-war fathers arose in the house today while members of the senate military committee generally appeared willing to let Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, have the final say.

Marshall is due to appear before the committee Monday, and indications mounted that many senators will not make up their minds on the Wheeler bill, which would postpone the induction of family heads until after Jan 1, before hearing his views.

Several members of the house military committee declared, however, that they had not been convinced by the testimony thus far, including that of Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson, that the inductions are necessary now.

The house group decided at an executive session yesterday to sit with the senate committee when Marshall appears.

"Despite testimony given the senate committee by army and navy officials opposing legislation to prohibit the father-draft, the Police Solve Mystery As Woman Admits $7,500 Theft.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—Police today felt they were near solution of the mystery of the disappearance of half of 60-year-old Albert Schneeberger's $41,400 fortune as they reported the confession of a woman that she took $7,500 of the missing cash.

Detective Inspector Frank W. Story said the woman, in whose home Schneeberger roomed, had made the admission in a written statement. He added that four bank books in her name showed recent large deposits.

County Hits 44 Per Cent Of Bond Goal

Campaign for $6,060,000 Quota Striking 'Tough Going' Stage.

With eight days of the Third War Loan drive already gone, Richland county's total collection stood today at $2,658,146—44 per cent of the $6,060,000 goal.

Chairman H. G. Brunner said today this is the same per cent collected in the first eight days of the Second War Loan drive in April.

"However," he pointed out, "there is a larger task ahead of us now since the banks are not able to make big purchases and put the drive over the top in the last few days." The drive closes Sept. 30.

Yesterday's sales were the smallest yet reported with a total of $111,782. Brunner said the reason for this was that there were no sales of two per cent and seven-eighths per cent treasury notes.

Nearly 280 more persons subscribed to the drive yesterday making the total number of subscribers 3,550. Of yesterday's subscribers 260 bought E bonds totaling $18,750.

In a report today from the bond area which includes Richland county the county stood among the first seven of the 26 counties in the area. This report was based on sales through last Tuesday.

Meanwhile today in Washington, treasury officials reported a total of $7,679,000,000, swelled to that point by yesterday's sales of $2,620,000,000 worth of bonds.

National Director Ted Gamble said today, "The easiest part of the task is over. From now on it will mean a beating of the bushes to reach the tremendous goal of 15 billion dollars.

Ohio ranked ninth among the states with 34 per cent of its $698,000,000 goal subscribed.

MEET TODAY

Utility Representatives To Discuss Airport Project.

Removal of surface utility lines to open the site for the proposed Mansfield airport expansion project was to be discussed this afternoon at a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms of city officials, the C. of C. airport committee, and representatives of Ohio Bell Telephone company, Mansfield Telephone company, and Ohio Public Service company.

The city wants the utility firms to place their telephone and power lines under the earth for safety, but whether the city is going to have to bear a part of the cost of the line changes hasn't been decided.

John G. Routzon, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said today's meeting was called to give the city a chance to offer its program to the utility companies and ask their co-operation in getting the lines moved in time to start work on the airport early in 1944.

HOLD UP WORK

Strikers Delay Launching of Tanker, Shipbuilding.

BALTIMORE —(AP)— Officials of the Bethlehem-Sparrows Point shipyard said today that a work stoppage of approximately 120 riveters who were demanding wage increases was holding up launching of one tanker and work on other vessels.

Louis G. Crocetti, local president of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America (CIO) refused comment immediately.

Nazis Reported Seizing Released Prisoners.

AT THE SWISS FRONTIER—(AP)—German authorities were reported today rounding up all Allied prisoners released in Italy after the capitulation of the Pietro Badoglio government and to have ordered all Italian troops to report for duty in the German army.

Allies Advance Against Fierce German Assaults

Here are two pictures showing Fifth army troops advancing against the Germans on the Salerno beachhead. At top, under attack from high flying German bombers which missed their mark, American men and vehicles push inland from the Italian coast. At bottom, using a captured German gun position for protection, an American soldier awaits an opportune moment to advance through German mortar fire on the Italian front. After a fierce battle with the Nazis the Americans are on the offensive again in the Salerno area.

JUNIOR FAIR HELD SUCCESS

Prize Money Distributed For Big Display of Farm and Livestock Entries.

Although the attendance was estimated at less than 1,200 at the Richland county junior fair yesterday, fair officials described the show as a success from the standpoint of displays and indicated they probably will attempt to continue the fair, possibly extending it to two days next year.

It was the rural young people's day, scores of them exhibiting their summer's work with livestock, poultry, garden, and clothing projects. The only adult display was the combined Grange exhibit which filled one side of the Grange building and was described by veteran fair goers as one of the finest ever shown at the county exposition.

Vocational groups and 4-H clubs had large exhibits of sheep, hogs, garden produce, and clothing, but the cattle show was limited because of the difficulty in NORFOLK, Va.—(INS)—The navy reported today that 17 persons were killed and more than 250 injured in an explosion at the Norfolk Naval Air Station.

Fourteen of those injured were on the "critical" list, the navy commandant, Rear Admiral Leary announced.

Leary stated that early reports from witnesses have led them to believe the explosion came from ammunition in transit.

Aw, Whasha Matter, Ish Fun To Play With a Big Ole Crane

A playful intruder who prefers big "toys" created no end of confusion this morning at the Malo Brothers junk yard, 281 Bowman street, where he used a big crane to move a freight car around and played with the firm's trucks until one of them stuck on a railroad siding.

City detectives, who are looking for the unwelcome visitor, attributed the pranks to an inebriate who must have known something about the Malo brothers equipment.

Carl Wiseman, manager of the firm, said the prankster shut the doors to the big storeroom and left when he had finished without taking anything.

Wiseman said the rail lock had been removed from the Baltimore and Ohio sidetrack to the building, the lock on the power room door was broken and the crane was brought into action to haul a gondola car out of the building where it was being loaded.

A large truck was moved out of the way to permit the release of a smaller one which was driven around the building until it became lodged on the railroad siding. By that time the prankster must have become discouraged or tired, so he carefully shut the door and departed, detectives said.

KNOX IN LONDON

Expected To Confer on Waited Attacks on Western Europe.

LONDON—(U.P.)—U. S. Secretary of Navy Frank Knox arrived in London today for a visit regarded as a significant forerunner to the coming invasion of western Europe.

He is expected to confer with high Anglo-American naval officers on plans for future operations, particularly amphibious landings on the western shores of Adolf Hitler's European fortress.

American naval forces, observers believed, will assume a major role in western European waters for the first time when Allied ground forces swarm ashore for the greatest invasion in history.

Though his visit probably will be brief, it is believed significant, coming at a time when the Allies are bending every effort to speed up the tempo of attack against Germany.

Former Mansfielder Awarded Silver Star for Gallantry

A former Mansfielder, Capt. Warner G. Peterson, commander of an anti-aircraft battery, has received the Silver Star for gallantry displayed in the Tunisian campaign.

The citation was awarded, the war department said, when Capt. Peterson, although subject to heavy fire from enemy tanks threatening to overrun his position near El Guettar on March 23, rendered his equipment useless before withdrawing to safety.

Later, it added, he returned with a group of volunteers, recovered and repaired the equipment and resumed effective fire on the enemy.

DESTROY 58 JAP PLANES OVER WEWAK

Allies Inflict Heavy Defeat on Air Concentration at New Guinea Base.

CLOSE IN ON LAE

Hour-Long Air Battle Rips Enemy Attempt to Build Up Aircraft Strength.

(By International News Service)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC—A crushing new blow at a record concentration of Japanese air strength in the Wewak area of New Guinea was announced today.

At least 58 enemy planes were destroyed, 48 of them in an hour-long furious sky battle over the target area after swarms of fighter-escorted Allied bombers cascaded 66 tons of explosives on the Wewak and Boram airdromes within 15 minutes.

In a desperate attempt to stave off further destruction of their decimated air strength in New Guinea, the Japs hurled 60 to 70 intercepting fighters into the battle. But the Allied formations held.

The attacking bombers accounted for 39 of the enemy fighters and escorting pursuit planes shot down nine more. In addition, the bombers were credited with probably destroying 10 more interceptors and the fighter escort probably destroyed another.

During the bombing, at least 10 Jap bombers among 20 to 40 parked Jap aircraft were wiped out by direct hits. Fires were started among the remaining parked planes and two large fuel dumps burst into flame.

Some of the Allied bombers were damaged in the sky battle but all reached base. One fighter failed to return and others were damaged.

An Allied communique announcing the Wewak raid said: "Continuous air reinforcements are being brought up by the enemy in an attempt to redress his recent disastrous losses. His

Crack Nazis' Ring of Steel Near Salerno

Junction Effected After 200-Mile Push By Montgomery's Men; Forces on East Coast Also Welded Into New Single Front; Allies Take Albanella.

BULLETIN

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—(AP)—A Reuters correspondent with the Fifth army said today that enemy troop movements indicated the Germans were beginning to withdraw from the front facing the southern part of the Salerno bridgehead.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa—The Fifth army of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark and the British Eighth army fused their fronts with establishment of contact between patrols following an amazing northward march of nearly 200 miles from the Italian toe by Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's veterans, Allied headquarters announced today.

The Eighth army also made contact with British forces beating up the Italian east coast from Taranto, a communique from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced. All three of the Allied beachheads on the west, south and east thereby were welded into a single front.

The contact between Gen. Montgomery's speeding warriors and Gen. Clark's American and British troops, who for eight days had fought the greatest engagement of the Mediterranean war in order to maintain their west coast foothold, was made somewhere in or near the southern end of the Salerno bridgehead.

Linking of the two armies broke the enemy's ring of steel around Gen. Clark's Tommies and doughboys and appeared to have ended the critical period of the battle fought against four or more German armored divisions on the bloodstained beaches.

Announcement of the contact was made by Allied headquarters shortly after a communique had told of Montgomery's capture of Vallo Della Lucania, only 16 miles from Agropoli, at the southern end of the 27-mile front held by the Fifth army.

At the same time Clark's army struck out from its hard-won shoreline and recaptured the mountain village of Albanella, 10 miles inland, smashed three German counter-attacks and flattened several German salients that had been driven into Allied positions.

(An Algiers broadcast by NBC said Montecorvino, 8½ miles inland and 11 miles east of Salerno at the northern end of the bridgehead, also was captured in the repulse of one of the German attacks.

(London dispatches said seizure of Montecorvino would be one of the more significant Allied victories as the town is understood to be the site of one of the best airfields along the whole lower stretch of Italian west coast. With an airfield in Allied hands there the scope and effectiveness of fighter plane protection for Gen. Clark's base of operations would be greatly extended.

(A British broadcast from Algiers, recorded by CBS, said the Fifth and Eighth army patrols met about half way between Agropoli and Vallo Della Lucania, or less than 10 miles from the bridgehead.)

CRIPPLING: RAF Smashes Rail Center at Italo-French Border

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—A large force of RAF bombers swept deep into southeastern France last night to make a concentrated attack on enemy railway stations at Modane on the French-Italian frontier, and Mosquitos again hit Berlin, it was announced today.

British Lancasters, striking directly at enemy efforts to rush reinforcements into the Italian battlegrounds, also made a low level attack on the Antheor viaduct near St. Raphael on the French Riviera route.

At Modane, a French frontier town near the opening of the Mont Cenis tunnel, a "heavy and concentrated attack was made" on the freight yards, it was announced.

Four of the night bombers were reported missing.

The official announcement did not elaborate on the Berlin attack by the Mosquitos, but it was evidently another of the nerve-jangling jabs at which the speedy craft had become masters. The Mosquitos also struck at the German capital the previous night.

In hitting at the Modane area, the British bombers probably disrupted traffic through one of the few remaining railroad channels through the Alps over which the Germans can funnel reinforcements into Italy.

The big Alpine Mont Cenis tunnel, around which Germans and Italians have been reported fighting, is 50 miles northwest of Turin on the rail route to Lyon and Paris.

The British attacks carried the new round-the-clock bombing

DRIVING: Reds Smash Toward Krasnograd and Dnieper River

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Three Soviet armies, sweeping westward through the southern Ukraine, are closing on Krasnograd, Nazi bastion and rail junction in the Kharkov-Dnieperopetrovsk railway, a Reuters dispatch from Moscow said today.

Other Red army columns, having scored four impressive victories yesterday, were plunging forward on many sectors of the 600-mile battlefront, intent on throwing the Germans back across the Dnieper river barrier before heavy autumn rains render large scale military operations impossible.

A DNB broadcast from Berlin today admitted that the Germans had lost Novorossisk, the Russian Black Sea naval base in the Caucasus.

A German communique, broadcast by Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press, also conceded once more that the Nazis had evacuated Bryansk, important base on the central front. Berlin announced three days ago that Bryansk had been evacuated but denied it in a broadcast yesterday. The Russians have made no claims of the city's capture.

A triumphant Moscow communique, heralded by two special orders of the day signed by Premier Joseph Stalin and a salute of 24 salvoes from 124 guns in the Russian capital, recorded gains on four widely separated sectors.

1. Capture of the great Black Sea port of Novorossisk, an important naval base and springboard for an assault upon the German held Crimea.

2. Seizure of Novgorod Severski 90 miles southwest of Bryansk and bastion of the "German eastern wall" guarding White Russia.

3. Capture of strategic Lozovaya, cutting the Kharkov-Crimea railway, northern land artery for German forces in the Crimea, which placed Russian troops only

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—We can scarcely estimate how much depends on the success of General Mark W. Clark's Fifth army in holding its bridgehead around Salerno.

The territory is not so important. What counts is that the Allies show they can go ashore and stay there against the full power of Hitler to drive them out.

Clapper

Dieppe left its shell-shock on the Allies. Sicily helped to restore Allied confidence in amphibious operations. But those landings, like the ones in North Africa last November, were not against big-league German opposition.

Salerno is the first real test since Dieppe. At Dieppe the British—and Canadians especially—learned what it means to try to land against a heavily prepared enemy. That costly failure has been reared up to confront us whenever American military men have argued in favor of striking into France.

Suppose now the American divisions should be driven offshore. Inevitably a deep shadow of discouragement would be cast over hopes of landing and striking through France.

If we had lost at Salerno, Hitler would have turned triumphantly to his wavering satellites all through the Balkans and pointed out to them that he was still able to look out for his own. Apparently he has fished Mussolini out of the fire. We don't know where the king and Badoglio are. Possibly Hitler has them in Rome.

If Hitler had driven us off at Salerno, he could, all in all, have made the surrender of Italy to the Allies look like an empty gesture. So Allied prestige, Allied spirit for the future blow through France, Allied momentum for months to come, are all bound up in this desperate battle on the beaches around Salerno.

When Napoleon lined up his troops in Egypt for the battle of the Pyramids he reminded them that 40 centuries looked down on them. The western Allies look to the Fifth army and will be forever in its debt for the fight that it is making.

The Fifth army's triumph will be the proof that courage and training, and air cover and coordination, all applied together can take beachheads against entrenched artillery and Hitler's best armored divisions.

Success will give us not only knowledge and experience, but something that we need equally, confidence in moving against the best of Hitler's veterans.

All that may have its effect on the other side of the world. China's foreign minister, T. V. Soong, is making curious references to Japanese efforts to make peace with China. It probably is only squeeze play talk, yet if we had a failure in Italy that promised to prolong the European side of the war indefinitely, China might question how long she should hold on. Early Allied aid to China in more strength than we have been able to supply it is desirable. Otherwise Chiang may grow restless, even though it is doubtful if Japan would ever offer terms China could accept. Chiang wants Manchukuo and Formosa.

Italy is going to be the test of whether it is to be a fairly short war in Europe, or an indefinitely long one. Most of those with whom I talk still allow about a year to finish off Germany and I stick to the October, 1944, guess which I made last summer while in England.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—If one may draw conclusions from the number and variety of the remedies for the ills that flesh is heir to which, day after day and night, are dinned into the ears of Americans by radio, then ours is either a nation of hypochondriacs or suffering in mass from complications of diseases and not far from death's door. This is not a new condition but a return or relapse to an old one of about 40 years ago, when our elders, particularly those who lived up the back roads, dosed themselves religiously with a long list of sterling specifics and golden discoveries for everything. Most of them had a stout alcoholic base and some were prepared from secret formulas obtained from old Quaker ladies in Pennsylvania or Indian squaws in Kansas. They included opium, tiger marraw fat and snake oil among their ingredients and many a pious deacon in those days gave his written testimony to impersonal doctors in the big cities far away, recounting his marvelous cure of what ailed him only to discover, when Dr. Harvey W. Wiley got busy, that he had habitually been getting himself gently soused or hopped with dope.

Pegler

There was some excuse for the gullibility of the simple citizen that long ago, for the medics themselves were few in number and primitive in knowledge and methods, and when people fell to ailing, it was a comfort to reach for the bottle over the sink and drug their fears or pain away with draughts which had the soothing effect of a tap on the skull with a nickel ball bat but raised no lump.

Science, however, advanced apace and journalism, under general pressure from the department of justice, helped to abolish the practice of home diagnosis and mail-order therapy by rejecting the accounts of certain patent medicines or stipulating that they must not be represented as cures. So, having thrown away the flyspecked bottles, adorned with steel engravings of fur-bearing doctors of the same general mien as the New England poets, our people emerged into a period of tolerable health which lasted until the discovery of the package-goods vitamin, at which point the public health rate appears to have gone over a cliff.

Now I am not certain that I know what vitamins are, but, like many, many others, I have yielded from time to time to insistent urgings that I consume a few and I will give my own testimony that, contrary to the wheedlings of many earnest high-pitch men, operating from the radio tailboard, they have never made the slightest difference in my energy or pep, as they sometimes call it. They made me feel no worse but certainly no better and, as for injection of vitamins into flour and the creation thereby of an article of commerce known as fortified bread, my first report is that this is the worst travesty on the staff of life that ever was devised to mock man's honest hunger. Yet, so clamorous are these exhortations and so couched that the unoffending citizen is made to feel accused of slackerism if he refused to consume their vitamins.

People must be buying them in enormous quantities or the promoters would not have the money to maintain the propaganda but I think you will agree that there has been no perceptible reinvigoration of the whole public and I dare say that we should not be perceptibly worse off for their total repudiation except under the doctor's orders.

There is also an insistent appeal to all of us to dope ourselves with certain cures for the headache which is not an illness of itself but a symptom, usually to be endured briefly and cured by natural processes or, otherwise, to be investigated by a physician.

One of these little miracles, so cheap and prepared in the handy package, contains an ingredient which is dangerous to cardiacs and damn near killed one of my acquaintances, and I make so bold as to state that the announcer who urges it on us between blurts of actorish war bulletins in which Boulogne is variously pronounced Boolonyah and Bouloan, knows no more about medicine than Charley McCarthy. Nor do I respect any more highly the scientific qualification of those who recommend hangover-cure disguised as something for acid indigestion.

This, they whispered into each other's jeweled ears, is a discovery! Where did the bistro dig her up? Where does she come from, this unique artiste?

Well, I have done a little research into the matter and discovered it will do no harm to reveal (because she has been revealed before, in a big way) that Nadya Norskaya was, when burlesque was really burlesque, the Countess Naja, star stripuse of the Minsky chair rival of Gypsy Rose Lee on stage and on the marquee billing.

GOV. BRICKER OUTLINES HIS FOREIGN POLICY

U. S. Should Keep Freedom To Act, Build Impregnable Sea and Air Defense.

(By United Press)

PHILADELPHIA — United States foreign policy must be based on the preservation of the nation's identity and its "traditional freedom of action," Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio said today in urging an "incomparable navy and air force" be maintained after the war to protect our interests.

"Only thus can we be strong in our help of others," Bricker said. "The United States must adhere to a policy which will preserve its constitutionalism as expressed in the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution itself, and the Bill of Rights and as administered through our Republican form of government."

Bricker spoke on a nationwide broadcast before the Sons of the American Revolution in a Constitution Day address.

Never again, he said, should peace negotiations be directed by a single political party. A one-man or one-party peace is not desired, he added, in asking for non-partisan peace negotiations. "If we believe in collaboration among the nations we must put it in practice among Americans," he said.

He suggested that a lasting peace may be accomplished not through a "single supreme peace conference," but that many conferences might be desirable because "the making of a lasting peace may be a matter of many months or years."

"We should retain an incomparable navy and air force for our protection and for the protection of our interests which lie in the two great oceans of the world," he said. "We are definitely interested in the essential approaches to the western hemisphere.

"We must, in close collaboration with our neighbors, maintain an impregnable defense. And we must see to it that our military and naval technical services maintain themselves at the utmost frontiers of the scientific universe."

In the economic field, he said, we should establish our financial integrity by ascertaining our dollar "is a sound dollar wherever it goes. We must abolish the policies that encourage inflation. For we cannot have inflation at home and abundant trade abroad."

Bricker again reiterated his suggestion that the Constitution be amended to limit the presidential office to a single term of six years.

6 ESCAPE FROM TOMB IN MINE

Blast at Harlan Kills Twelve Companions of Men Who Fought Black Damp.

(By Associated Press)

HARLAN, Ky. — Six coal-smeared miners emerged alive last midnight from Three Point mine after a 12-hour entombment caused by an explosion that dealt sudden death to 12 companions.

The mine early this morning yielded the bodies of the dead, three being discovered at one tunnel entrance and nine others lying close together not far away.

The three were found first more than a mile from the main mine entrance. Beyond this group, almost a mile further back in 12-left tunnel, were the six men who barricaded themselves against the deadly black damp in their fight for life.

The six survivors came out on motor trams, smiling broadly and with moist eyes revealing their unspoken appreciation for their rescue by crews of tireless miners who worked the clock around to fight through the poison gases to their cell.

The survivors:

Harvey Lasley, Three Point; Warren Pruitt, Three Point; Charles Bailey, Cawood, Ky.; Shelley Farley, Three Point; Paul Helton, Three Point; Homer Osborne, Cawood.

The dead:

Merle Blanton, Molus, Ky.; Carson Ramsey, Three Point; E. M. Morgan, Three Point; Albert Bonza, Three Point; Fred Irvin, Three Point; Leander Cole, Cawood; Dave Osborne, Cawood; Ed Osborne, Cawood; George Helton, Three Point, Frank McKenzie, Cawood, Lawrence Jordan, Three Point, Marion Osborne, Cawood.

WELL, WHY NOT?

WASHINGTON—(AP)— It's tough enough to pay high war taxes but worse if you have to worry with, too many forms, says Rep. George Bender (R., Ohio) suggesting the time has come to simplify the procedure. If there is to be withholding at the source, he said, the amount taken should represent all the taxpayer owes.

Can you read the license tag on the rear of your car when the vehicle is in motion? If not, there is trouble ahead for you unless you have it painted, says C. W. Wallace, Ohio registrar of motor vehicles. This is the way to test the legibility of your rear license plate: Stand at the curb when your automobile is being driven away from you and read the letters and numerals on the license tag. If you can't read them, a paint job is in order. Provisions have been made for motorists to drive with one license while the other is being repaired until Sept. 30. After Sept. 30 permits will have to be obtained from police or the sheriff's office before repainting of license plates may be done, the registrar said.

A new kind of epidemic—an epidemic of lost ration books—hit the local ration board today. Board officials said most of the books reported lost or stolen had been in glove compartments of automobiles. C. C. Beelman, board chairman, today said, "People wouldn't leave their money in the glove compartment of a car, why do they leave their ration books which are nearly as valuable?" He said a lost or stolen book must be reported to the police. Then the police report with an application for a new book must be sent to the board through the mail. New books are not issued until 10 days after the loss is reported and during this time an investigation is made, he explained.

GETS LONGER TERM

LONDON—(AP)—Two hours of freedom cost Lester W. Hudson two years in prison and a transfer from London prison farm to Ohio penitentiary, farm Supt. William F. Amrine reported today. Amrine said Hudson, 26, of Dayton, attempted to escape yesterday but was caught by guards.

FACES SUIT FOR $100,000,000

Wright Corporation Charged With Delivering Defective Engines To Government.

CINCINNATI —(INS)— The Wright Aeronautical corporation faced a $100,000,000 suit today filed in federal district court charging delivery of defective airplane engines.

The action, brought by W. T. Hall of Leesburg, Fla., acting on behalf of himself and the U. S. government, alleges that the suburban Lockland plant delivered more than 2,000 defective airplane engines between Jan. 1, 1942, and July 15, 1943.

Hall asked twenty-four million dollars plus interest for the government in addition to $2,000 for each of the 2,000 allegedly defective engines and made identical claims for himself. He declared that the corporation made "false, fictitious and fradulous" claims for payment of the engines.

On July 10 the government sued the plant, a subsidiary of the Curtiss-Wright corporation, contending it made certain false claims in connection with the manufacture of engines.

J. R. O'Malley, special attorney for the department of justice, immediately questioned the legality of Hall's suit. Since the government already had suits pending O'Malley insisted that these have priorities over any action by a private individual.

DELAY SEEN IN HOUSE ACTION ON POLICY BILL

Debate Limitation Rule Likely To Stymie Prompt Vote on Fulbright Resolution.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Chances of obtaining immediate house action on the Fulbright resolution favoring United States participation in post-war peace machinery seemed today to be fading rapidly.

The difficulty arises from the rules of house procedure under which the foreign affairs committee has decided to attempt Monday to obtain a resolution vote. The procedure will be to move for suspension of the rules to permit consideration of the resolution. Such a motion requires a two-thirds affirmative vote.

It should not be difficult to obtain a two-thirds vote in support of immediate consideration of the resolution. But under house rules the debate limit on matters brought before the house under such circumstances is 20 minutes to each side. To obtain agreement to increase the allotment of time, the managers of the resolution would have to ask unanimous consent of the house. A single objection would suffice to maintain the 20 minute limitation.

Republican leaders and Republican members of the foreign affairs committee who conferred yesterday were told that four or five members of the house were prepared to object to any such unanimous consent request.

Given a fairly liberal allotment of time for debate, the house probably would adopt the resolution Monday. But many representatives who would vote for the Fulbright resolution would feel compelled, also, to explain their vote in some brief remarks to the house.

Twenty minutes on a side scarcely would accommodate all those who would desire to speak.

Meantime, if the house is stymied Monday by a single objection the political significance of failure to consider the resolution probably will not amount to much. The resolution can be brought up later and doubtless will be. The idea in seeking quick action on it now is that a favorable house vote might prod the senate foreign relations committee and the senate to take a position on the question of post-war policy.

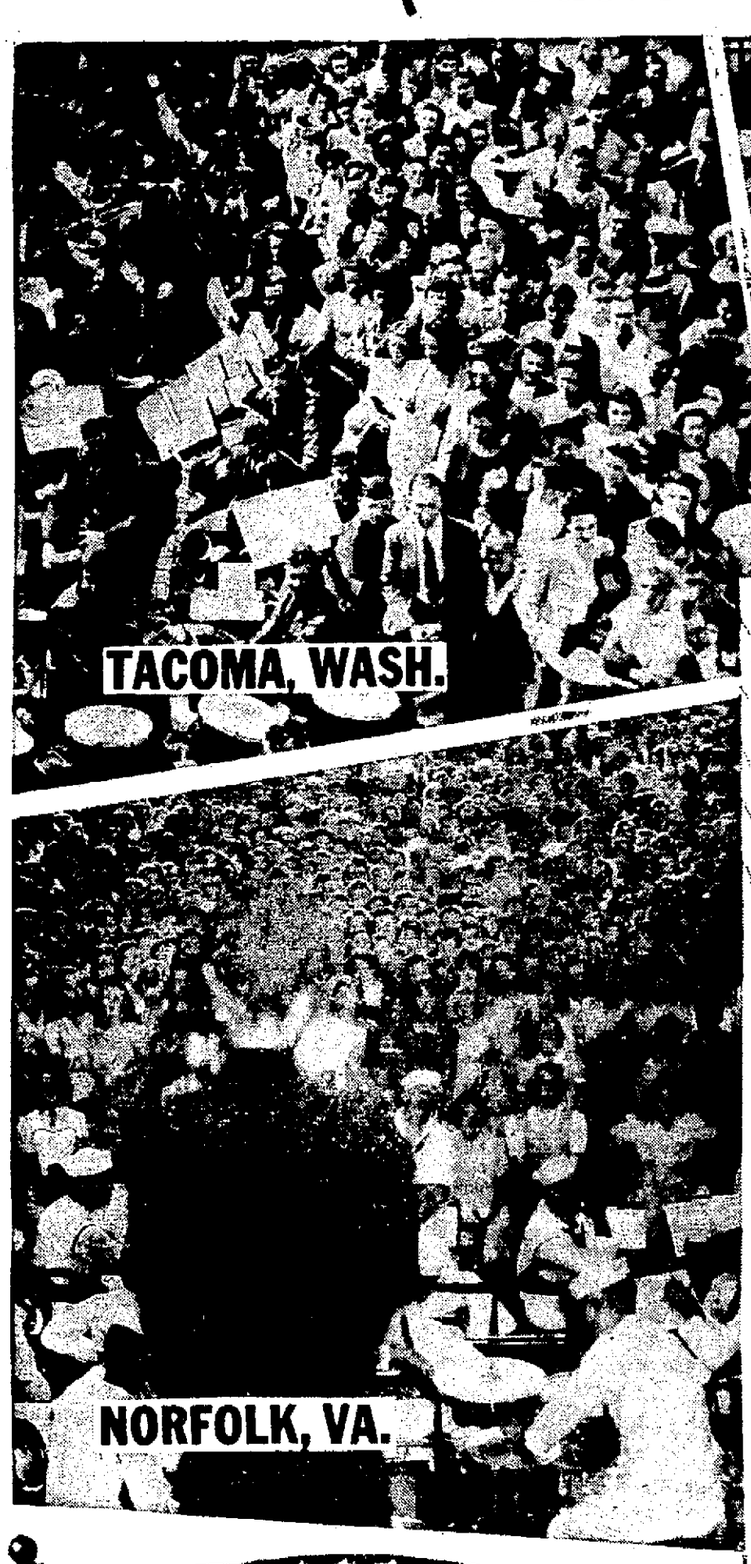
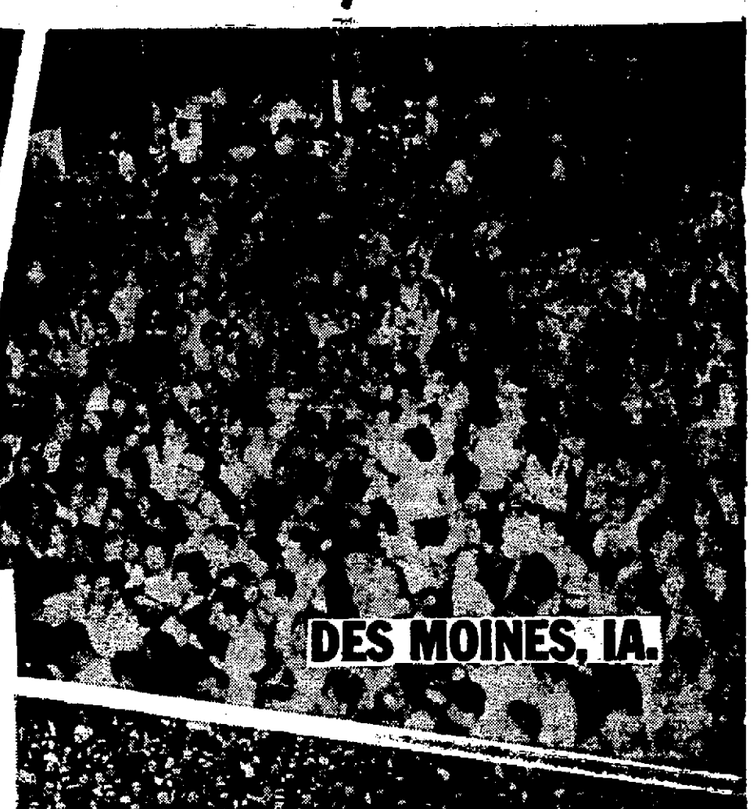
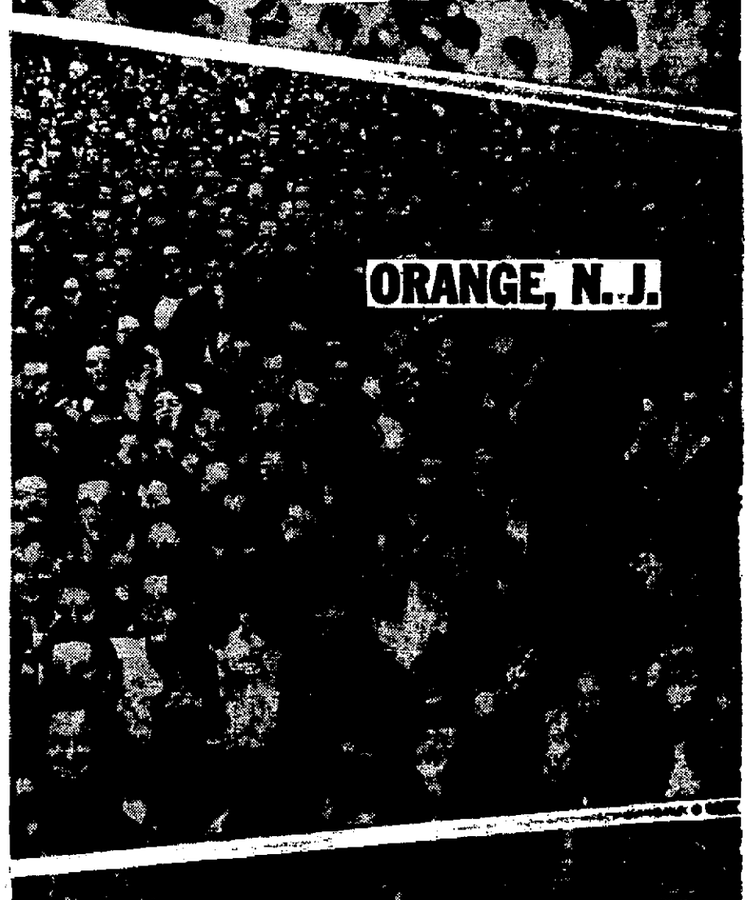
WE'RE ALL IN IT!

("Invasion Scenes" On Our Own War Bond Front)







NO, YOU DON'T SEE them leaping ashore from invasion barges, facing enemy bullets. But in the War Bond Rally pictures shown here are thousands of Americans who are playing a vital invasion role, just the same.

Because invasion is everybody's job. The army of the 3rd War Loan is on the march! Millions of volunteer campaign workers; more millions of Bond-buyers—each of us has a part to play—and at invasion tempo!

Every shot fired is important; every Bond bought now is important! Now is the time to "back the attack!"

Our job in the 3rd War Loan is to raise 15 billions of the money needed for guns, ammunition and food. The money must come from us—"we, the people."

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

El Kammer, coach of Massillon Washington high school, doesn't want his Tigers to forget that 35-0 lacing they took last fall from Canton McKinley, breaking Massillon's long victory string.

"Every time they read that 35 to 0 score, they get madder," Kammer told Harry Yockey, Canton sports writer, "so keep right on writing about it."

Being a good Canton booster, my friend Yockey probably shouldn't help the Massillon morale building program by ever mentioning that McKinley-Massillon game again.

But, the McKinley Bulldogs also like to read that 35-0 score at every opportunity, so the subject probably will be brought up often before the season is over.

Of this year's Tiger regulars, four were in the starting lineup against McKinley last fall, and one was a sub. They get maddest of all.

* * *

One Mansfield fan, now in service, writes asking for more news about the Mansfield Tygers in this column and less about golf.

I am not bothered by one person's opinion, but there undoubtedly are many others who wonder why the Tygers haven't been getting more space on this page since they began practice.

To one and all let me explain that the things that have been written on this page about the Tygers have met with the approval of the Tyger coaching staff, and the things left unsaid have met with even greater approval.

Here's the idea. A full report in the paper each day on Tyger practice sessions would tell opposing coaches all they'd want to know about the offensive formations used by the Tygers, who were the best ball carriers, who does the passing and receiving, what the weaknesses on offense and defense might be.

Some papers do report high school practice sessions daily and rather completely. It would be a poor coach who couldn't draw a pretty fair chart of his opponents' offense after reading such accounts for a week.

I say let the opposition do its own scouting. In the meantime I'll give you the actual news coming out of the Tyger camp.

Allie Reynolds Hurls Opener

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Young Allie Reynolds is the Cleveland Indian pitching nominee for tonight's series opener with the Detroit Tigers, first of four games that will wind up the Tribe's 1943 season.

Seeking his 10th win against the same number of defeats, Reynolds is slated to oppose 17-game winner Virgil Trucks.

The teams move to League Park tomorrow for a single matinee game, and return to Municipal Stadium for a double-header Sunday.

Jeff Heath, slugging outfielder who was benched by Manager Lou Boudreau a week ago for objecting to managerial strategy and idle the last three days with an attack of influenza, is expected to be back in uniform tonight. Dr. M. H. Castle, team physician, said the husky gardener probably will not see action for a day or two, however.

Baseball Clinchers In Offing

Yanks and Cards Can Win Flags This Week-End.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE pennants in both the National and American leagues may be clinched tomorrow and Sunday.

The Yankees have upset the calculations of the figure filberts by winning nine consecutive games, their longest victory string since they put together 11 in a row in July 1942, and now they have a chance to tie down the American league pennant mathematically in a three-game series opening tonight with the Washington Senators.

If the Yanks can sweep the series, a single encounter tonight at Washington and a double-header Sunday, they will be "in."

* * *

Yesterday the Yanks polished off the Philadelphia Athletics 5-1 with a four-run seventh-inning rally climaxed by Charley Keller's 28th home run and second in two days with a mate aboard. It was the last meeting of the year for the two clubs and gave the Yanks 16 out of 22 games with the A's this season.

If New York fails to nail the pennant Sunday the clincher will be delayed at least until next Wednesday because Monday and Tuesday are open dates for all clubs.

The St. Louis Cardinals, who clipped the Chicago Cubs 7-5 yesterday, might eliminate the second place Brooklyn Dodgers tonight, but will have to wait at least until tomorrow before freezing out the Cincinnati Reds.

This is because the Dodgers had a game at Boston cancelled Wednesday. Thus the Cardinal "combination" against Brooklyn is two and against Cincinnati is three.

The Cardinals found the Cubs tough customers yesterday, however, and it took a two-run homer by George Kurowski in the seventh to settle the game.

* * *

In the only other games yesterday the Phillies and Boston Braves divided a bouleheader. The Phils won the 9-2 opener, but Boston took the 8-0 nightcap.

Rifle Match Booked Sunday

N. C. O. Championships Fired at Gasco Club.

North Central Ohio annual outdoor rifle match will be shot Sunday at the Gasco range south of Ontario under the sponsorship of the Richland Gasco club.

Range will open at 8:30 a. m., and entries close at 3 p. m. The Lewis system will be used to classify winners.

Four matches are on the program. First two will be the any sight DeWar, and iron sight DeWar. The championship match will be the aggregate of the first two, which may be fired at once if both are fired iron sight, saving 40 rounds or record fire.

Fourth match is the two man team with 20 shots at 100 yard international target, shot with any sight.

The N. C. O. match was originally scheduled for Labor Day, but was postponed when it was learned most of the shooters were working on the holiday.

Match board is composed of Walter Good, Cy Hassinger, William Rhinehart, Clarence Rist, Herb Witmer, Cleo Pfleiderer and Milo Hill.

Officials are: E. E. (Mike) Cosgrove, chief range officer, C. A. Hassinger, registrar, Opal Hassinger, assistant registrar, Clarenuce Rist, scorer, Charles Dogget, recorder of target detail.

Brewer Title Seems Assured

(By Associated Press)

Young Bill Veeck, president of the Milwaukee baseball club, and Manager Charlie Grimm who passed out breakfast food at morning games and gave away cubes of butter brought to the park in an armored car as part of their crowd-pleasing antics, gave Brewer fans something to shout about today—a championship which appeared definitely assured.

* * *

The Brewers all but won the American Association title last night by humbling Minneapolis 13-4.

The only way the Brewers can lose the flag now is to drop their last four games while the second-place Indianapolis Indians sweep the final five on their remaining schedule.

Indianapolis gained nothing by splitting a doubleheader with Toledo, the Tribe dropping the opener 7-1 and the Indians spiriting away the afterpiece 10-4.

In the only other game, Columbus tossed a 16-hit barrage at Louisville to win 10-1 to stay within striking distance of second place.

BABE RUTH PLANS NORTH AFRICAN TOUR

NEW YORK — (AP) — Babe Ruth, the "Sultan of Swat," may go to North Africa to give our soldiers in camp there a closeup of baseball's glamour boy in the golden 1920's.

This disclosure came today from a usually reliable source. Ruth, whose 60 homers in 1927 still stands as a major league record, was not available for comment, but it is understood that the war department has already approached him regarding the tour.

SERIES SELLOUT

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— The New York Yankees' box office announced today that all reserves and box seats for the three world series games here had been sold out, leaving only 28,000 unreserved grand stand and bleacher seats available for each day.

A London track meet for soldiers was delayed because the army couldn't find a pistol to start the races.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Still 18 days to go before the world series and the Yanks have sold all reserved seats at the stadium. . . . George Krehbiel of the Detroit News became the leading money winner among racing writers recently when his colt, Golden Man, won a $7,500 stakes race at the Detroit fairgrounds. . . . Now, who is the biggest loser? . . . The Los Angeles won the Pacific Coast league pennant and Milwaukee is about to cop the American Association flag, both under the management of men who used to be in the Cubs' organization—which affords good ammunition to scribes who are sniping at the "James boys," Wilson and Gallagher.

Joe Gordon, Yankees: No wonder they call him Flash, he's got the speed and agility to make those impossible stops. His batting average tumbled from his all-time high of .322 last season to a mere .236 now but he has hit 14 homers this season.

Lou Klein, Cardinals: 1943 edition of the Cards' annual rookie flash; fast and long-range hitter. Eye trouble accounted for his .249 average at Columbus last year. Currently hitting .291.

WHIPPETS BATTLE FOR TURKEY TONIGHT

SHELBY—The Shelby Whippets will be literally out to bring home the turkey tonight when they meet the Norwalk eleven here under the floodlights at the W. W. Skiles athletic field in the opening grid game for both schools.

Dick Cook, Shelby merchant, has offered the Whippets a free turkey dinner if they win one-third of the games scheduled this fall. This means Shelby would have to win at least three games out of the eight-game schedule.

DETROIT —(AP)— The first of 30 teams from the United States and Canada battling for championships in the annual "World Series" of the Amateur Softball association meet tonight in a two game program. The others will play tomorrow in a double-round free-for-all.

In opening games under lights at University of Detroit Stadium the New Orleans Jax start defense of the women's title against the Detroit Bomberettes and the Detroit Briggs Bombers, 1942 men's runnerup, will tackle Wallace, Tex. The Tulsa, Okla., Deep Rock Oilers, last year's winner, are unrepresented.

Crippled Rams, Tygers Open

Both Teams Weakened For Grid Lid Lifters.

Madison high school's Rams and Mansfield high school's Tygers today faced their opening games of the season in crippled condition.

The Rams, playing at New London this afternoon, had Dick Eccles, fullback, definitely on the shelf and Halfback Dick Bader and Quarterback Joe Harfman on the doubtful list with injuries.

And the Tigers awaiting their opener tomorrow night at Marion, faced the prospect of trying numerous combinations to fill the place of Jack Guy, tackle and blocking back, who would be playing his only game of the season before leaving next week for the marines.

Guy came up with a slight knee injury in practice this week, and doesn't want it aggravated before reporting for service.

The Rams left at 1:30 this afternoon for New London where the game is scheduled at 3 o'clock. Since travel restrictions keep most of their followers at home, the Rams were given a big send-off in a pep meeting at Madison this noon.

The Tygers will leave tomorrow evening at 5:30 and the Marion game is booked at 8 o'clock. Coach Paul Snyder said today he would take his entire squad of 36 players on the Marion trip.

Probable starting lineup for the Tygers will be: Komjenovich, le, Etzel, lt, Parry, lg, Miller, c, Schaefer, rg, Jacobs rt, Lewis, re, Dent, qb, McBride, lh, Schmidt rh, D. Mnsilie, fb.

Marion's probable starting lineup will be: Dillinger, le, Fazio, lt, Lemnitzer, lg, Meach, c, Strobel, rg, Orth rt, Beam, re, Lee, qb, Young, lh, Midlam, rh, and Koeppen, fb.

Marion will have an average weight advantage of four to six pounds per man, with the bulk of the weight at the tackles where Captain Charles Fazio and Orth tip the beams at 200.

Mansfield's Tygers took the loss of Guy in good spirit yesterday. "We'll have to get along without him the rest of the season, so we might as well get used to it," was their reaction.

Undefeated Defiance Gets Test In Friday Night Opening Game

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Two college contests—and so many high school games no one can count 'em—launch Ohio's 1943 football campaign this week-end, with the majority of the scholastic contests scheduled tonight.

Baldwin Wallace put the opening wedge under the football lid a week ago, absorbing a 14 to 6 defeat at the hands of Rochester, but this week-end's action is the first for the more than 500 high school squads.

The college contests, Saturday afternoon, send Ohio Wesleyan against Bowling Green in a V-12 unit fray, and Miami's Redskins against Indiana's Hoosiers of the Western conference.

Five of last year's undefeated teams—Defiance, Cleveland Lincoln, Tiltonsville, Toledo Libbey and Dayton Oakwood—go into action in tonight's high school openers, along with highly-rated Massillon, Canton McKinley, Niles, Mansfield, Marion and other hot-shots.

H. R. Townsend, who predicted earlier that almost 100 schoastic teams would fold up this year, revised his figures today. The high school athletic commissioner now believes only 35 will be missing, which gives the Buckeye state a football contingent of some 15,000 boys.

Many of the teams, Townsend said, will take the field garbed in last year's uniforms, many schools not being able to get new equipment because of wartime shortages. The commissioner said the equipment problem was mild, however, compared to transportation troubles facing the squads.

Among Saturday's top-flight attractions are Mansfield vs. Marion, and Youngstown East against Youngstown Rayen, while tonight's leading attractions include:

CAR RECOVERED

Funeral Auto, Used By O. S. R. Fugitives Found.

Stolen Aug. 24 from the garage at the Finefrock Funeral home, a $2,000 automobile was found yesterday in a woodlot between Mt. Vernon and Jelloway by state highway patrolmen who had searched that area for it two weeks. The car was used by four Mansfield reformatory inmates to escape.

Officers learned from two of the inmates who were captured in Chillicothe five days after their escape that the big car was hidden somewhere between Butler and Mt. Vernon, but it was so well concealed that they passed within a few feet of it several times before it was found.

John Finefrock, the owner, said the car had been driven about 300 miles and was roughly used, but it was not damaged badly. The two captured inmates who used the car to escape were Samuel Shrider, 22 and Russell Allen, 24, both of Newark. They were charged with auto theft at Newark.

PLAN SESSION ON PAY HIKE

Councilman Says Lawmakers To Meet Next Week on City Wage Question.

City council will decide in caucus early next week the amount of pay increase city employes will get and when the raises will be granted.

C. N. Shultz, chairman of council's special committee appointed to study the request for raises, said he had been unable to get the councilmen together this week but would call them into a meeting next week.

"We'll have to start all over again in our study of the question of raises," Shultz said.

Councilmen's inability to agree on a plan that would give all city employes raises was understood to have resulted in the decision several weeks ago to delay action on the request until the end of the year. Some of the members wanted to grant a percentage raise while others held out for increases only for the lower bracket wage earners, it was said.

The insistence of public employes and labor groups last week brought a promise from council to renew its study of the pay increase request.

Ticket Sale for 'This Is Army' Reported 'Good'

Mansfielders continued today to buy tickets for the premier of the picture "This is the Army" to be held at the Ohio theater Friday Sept. 24.

Chairman George W. Stephens said today the response to the charity project has been "very good." Proceeds from the sale of tickets costing $1.10, $3.30 and $5.50 will go to Army Emergency Relief.

According to the ticket chairman several groups of Mansfielders have planned theater parties for the premier in order to do their part for the relief fund.

Tickets are on sale at the steel hut erected on the west side of the square. These huts are manufactured at the Mansfield Stran-Steel plant and have gone out from Mansfield to fighting fronts all over the world.

The "ticket hut" is a sample of the arch-rib utility warehouse. This building is an all-purpose structure used as a warehouse, canteen workshop, recreation hall and the like. Its varied uses caused one navy official to call it a "new jeep in the military field."

As part of the ticket sale drive the Westinghouse 711 band under the direction of Frank Dekrell will give a concert at Central park from 7 to 8 tonight.

NURSES GIVEN RED CROSS PINS

Presentation Made at Movie Where They Are Guests For Bataan Movie.

Ten Mansfield General Hospital nurses last night received their Red Cross student reserve pins from the stage at the Ohio theater where the picture "So Proudly We Hail" tribute to the nurses who were on Bataan is showing.

Nearly 50 Red Cross nurses in uniform were the guests of the theater to see the picture and take part in the presentation ceremonies.

Rev. Grover Swoyer in a short address urged Mansfielders to honor these nurses who dedicate themselves to the job of caring for the sick and wounded during this war.

Pins were presented by Miss Gayle Rife and Miss Bessie Easley to Anna Vogel, Helen Stull, Irene Rinehart, Vesta Watson, Mary Muntiss, Margaret Ness, Ruth Lanker, Marjorie Shulze, Hilda Allison and Rose LaVarge.

Following the ceremony the nurses gathered at the Red Cross chapter house on Park avenue west where they were served refreshments.

Nurses from General hospital will have a booth in the lobby of the Ohio theater tonight to promote enlistment in the U. S. Cadet Nursing project which provides hospital training for young women from 17 to 35 who want to become nurses for duty at home, replacing young women who have gone to war.

Some of the enlistees will be training at General hospital and others will be sent to large hospitals in other Ohio cities. They receive government pay for expenses while they are in training.

Did You Vacation In Michigan? OPA Checks Licenses

Mansfielders who vacationed in August at such Michigan resorts as Charlevoix, Petoskey, Mackinaw City, Sheboygan and other vacation spots along the west shore of Lake Huron and the east shore of Lake Michigan face possible suspension of gasoline rations.

James C. Gruener, regional Office of Price Administration attorney reported today that more than 1,300 motorists, mostly Ohioans, may have their gas rations suspended as a result of a six-day check of Michigan vacation spots.

Regional and District investigators, checking out-of-town and out-of-state licenses on automobiles traveling distances too great for legitimate ration coupon use, found 1,325 obvious violators of mileage rationing regulation, Gruener said.

He added that license numbers have been sent to OPA district headquarters having jurisdiction over the motorists with instruction to institute suspension order proceedings.

Meanwhile today Mansfield motorists were reminded by the local board that old type B and C coupons must be exchanged by Saturday. No exchange will be made after that date.

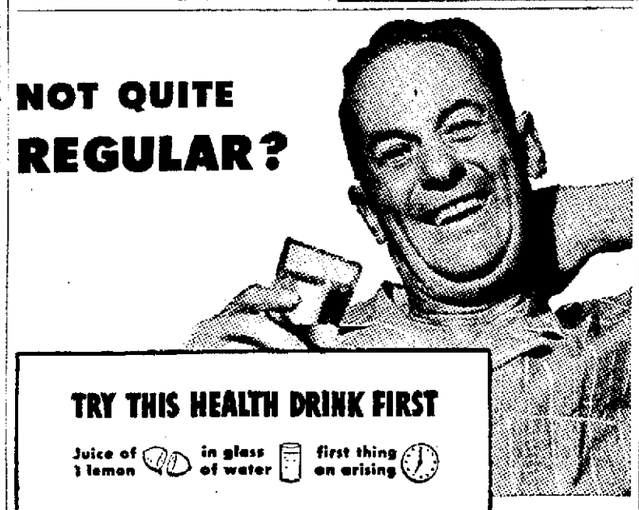
NOT QUITE REGULAR?



TRY THIS HEALTH DRINK FIRST
Juice of 1 lemon in glass of water first thing on arising
Has a natural laxative effect for most people, and it aids digestion, supplies needed vitamins, builds resistance, too!

Here's a surprisingly simple way to avoid the usual harsh laxatives.

Most people find that the juice of one lemon in a glass of water, taken first thing on arising, is all they need to insure prompt, normal elimination—gently. And lemon and water is good for you.

Lemons Build Health! Lemons are among the richest sources of vitamin C, which restores energy, helps you resist colds and infection. They're the only known source of vitamin P (citrin) and supply valuable amounts of B1. They alkalinize—aid digestion. Millions not troubled with constipation take lemon and water daily just as a health builder.

Why not keep regular with this refreshing morning drink that builds health too? Try it ten days, first thing on arising—see if you don't benefit!

P.S.—LEMON & SODA - Some prefer juice of 1 lemon in half glass water with ¼ to ½ teaspoon baking soda (bicarbonate) added. Drink as foaming quiets.

CITY DECIDES ON 1-DAY TIN CAN COLLECTION

Truckers To Gather Up Cans Placed In Front of Homes Friday, Sept. 24.

Mansfield's accumulation of tin cans will be collected in one day, Friday, Sept. 24, instead of in a series of collections extending through next week, it was announced today at civilian defense headquarters.

The one-day collection will place less burden on the city's overworked garbage department which will be in charge of the tin salvage, it was pointed out. Shiny tin cans that have been smashed should be placed in containers in front of homes where the truckers will see them.

Trucks operating in Madison township outside the city will collect cans from seven depots Sept. 25. Depots where the cans may be taken are at the Roxy Inn on U. S. Route 30-S; Besenti grocery in East Mansfield; Roseland school; Nick Mega residence in Garden Acres; J. J. Swisher home in South Boulevards; Middleton's filling station, Lincoln Heights; Raemelton farm mail box, Marion avenue road.

Women who have old silk and nylon hosiery that can be used by the war department were urged today to turn them in to stores by Sept. 30.

Pupils in Mansfield schools will start a city-wide campaign for waste paper Oct. 17, calling on business places and homes for brown wrapping paper, cardboard boxes, magazines, and newspapers.

FILE APPRAISAL

An appraisal of the estate of the late Roy B. Dickson, entered today in probate court, totaled the estate at $225,779.

Of this amount $17,787 is in personal goods and chattel, $33,763 in money, $7,740 in stocks and bonds, $55,797 in accounts and $113,190 in real estate.

Ringling Circus Trains Puff Into City Tomorrow

on Longview avenue near the Olivesburg road, although this was not definite today.

Many of the star attractions of the circus world make up the show's program which gets under way with a spectacle entitled "Let Freedom Ring."

Features that will delight the circus fans will be the Loyal Repensky family of bareback riders, "The Changing of the Guard" with 50 elephants participating; Alfred Court's performing animals; the Wallendas, high wire artists, and the Naittos, Chinese tight wire performers.

The afternoon performance was moved back to 3:30 p. m. because the labor shortage makes it difficult to get the big tents and equipment ready any earlier. The circus management said the main entrance to the show will not open until 2:15 p. m. and they urged spectators not to jam the grounds in advance so that workmen will be handicapped in their operations.

Following the night performance the big show will move to Canton where it will appear Monday.

COVER 'EM UP

Peppers, Tomatoes May Be Hit By Jack Frost Tonight.

Mansfield gardeners' peppers, tomatoes, flowers and other tender crops are likely to need covers tonight to protect them from frost-bite, but the weatherman said the cold probably won't be severe enough to cause serious damage to unripened corn.

The height of Ohio's tall corn may help to save it from heavy damage if the mercury drops into the thirties, but short crops, such as vegetables and soybeans, that stay close to the ground may suffer from the cold, the weatherman predicted.

Ohio State university crop experts estimated that 16 per cent of the state's corn crop is still not matured and would be in some danger from freezing temperatures. If green corn should be frost-bitten, much of it could still be saved by storing it in silos, the crop authorities said.

MAKING PLANS

Goodyear Says It Will Build Passenger Dirigibles.

AKRON —(AP)— The Goodyear Tire and Rubber company will resume peacetime manufacture of dirigibles and already is working on designs for airships of 10,000,000 cubic feet—larger than any previously built, Board Chairman Paul W. Litchfield reported today.

The new dirigible, Litchfield told an audience of aviation writers, will play a vital role in transportation of passengers and freight in over-seas commerce.

Here Are Salient Points In Roosevelt Message to Congress

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Salient statements from President Roosevelt's message to congress:

The landing in Italy is not the only landing we have in mind. . . . At Quebec, the leaders and military staffs of Great Britain and the United States made specific and precise plans . . . for other landings on the continent of Europe and elsewhere.

When Hitler and the Nazis go out, the Prussian military clique must go with them.

* * *

We shall not be able to claim that we have gained total victory in this war if any vestige of fascism in any of its malignant forms is permitted to survive anywhere in the world.

* * *

German power can still do us great injury. But that evil power is being destroyed, surely, inexorably, day by day.

* * *

We have reliable information that there is definite unrest and a growing desire for peace among the peoples of these satellite countries—Rumania, Hungary, Finland and Bulgaria.

* * *

The freeing of the Mediterranean . . . will lead directly to resumption of our complete control of the waters of the eastern Indian ocean and the Bay of Bengal. Thus, we shall be enabled to strike the Japanese on another of their highly vulnerable flanks.

* * *

We face, in the Orient, a long and difficult fight. . . . It would be the utmost folly for us to try to pretend otherwise.

* * *

We are getting more supplies and military help to China.

* * *

It goes almost without saying that when Japan surrenders the United Nations will never again let her have authority over the islands which were mandated to her by the League of Nations.

* * *

In June and July we were worried by a reduction in the rate of increase in production. . . . I am happy to report that the increase was resumed in August. In the month of September it is even better.

* * *

We are still a long, long way from ultimate victory in any major theater of the war. . . . Nothing we can do will be more costly in lives than to adopt the attitude that the war has been won—or nearly won.

* * *

Although mistakes have been made, the job that has been done in converting peacetime America to a wartime basis has been a great job and a successful one.

* * *

We should move for greater economic protection of our returning men and women in the armed forces—and for greater educational opportunities for them.

* * *

And for all our citizens we should provide a further measure of social security in order to protect them against certain continuing hazards of life.

* * *

In this critical period . . . we seek cooperation between the executive and legislative branches of the government.

* * *

The policy of the good neighbor has shown such success in the hemisphere of the Americas that its extension to the whole world seems to be the logical next step.

HINT FDR TO SEND OWN MAN TO 3-WAY TALK

Capital Advices Say Personal Representative Would Go In Place of Hull.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — There is understood to be a strong possibility today that President Roosevelt will send a personal envoy instead of Secretary of State Cordell Hull to attend the forthcoming Anglo-American-Soviet diplomatic meeting.

Purpose of the meeting is to enable representatives of the three major Allied powers to have a frank exchange of views on post-war problems, including the treatment to be accorded a defeated Germany.

It also is intended to pave the way for a possible tri-partite agreement between the United States, Great Britain, and Russia to maintain world peace after defeat of the Axis powers.

The meeting is expected to be one of the most momentous Allied diplomatic conferences held so far. A highly authoritative source originally announced that it would be on the level of foreign ministers.

It now appears President Roosevelt is thinking of sending a special envoy instead of Hull to represent the United States. It is assumed in diplomatic circles that the president thinks the journey involved in attending the meeting might prove too fatiguing for the secretary of state, who enters his 72nd year next month.

The conference may be held in Moscow next month. The Soviet government would like to have it there. The British prefer London. This government is prepared to accept either Moscow or London as the location for the meeting.

Marshall's Word Waited; Dad Draft Opposition Grows

legislation is far from dead," said Rep. Short (R-Mo.), a committee member.

"Before we do anything to disrupt the home front, we must make a thorough survey of the whole situation."

Another Republican member, Rep. Harness of Indiana, said the house committee is "going into it more thoroughly."

Among the senators who said they would base their decision largely on Marshall's attitude was Chairman Truman (D-Mo.) of the war investigating committee, who told reporters:

"It's a question of the army's need. Whatever they need, we've got to furnish."

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), seeking to have his bill made the unfinished business of the senate today, said he would not ask that it be debated until after the army chief has testified.

Thus, veteran strategists said that if Marshall follows the line taken by his deputy chief of staff, Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, and others that the drafting of fathers is necessary to carry out this nation's global commitments, the bill's proponents may find rough sledding ahead.

In some responsible quarters, the view prevails that Moscow might be an opportune place to hold the first major diplomatic conference of the three Allied powers on postwar collaboration.

Although the journey to Moscow undoubtedly would be an arduous one for Hull, it is understood he would be perfectly willing to undertake it. If he does not attend the meeting, it will not be because of any personal reluctance to make the trip. The secretary attaches such great importance to the forthcoming meeting that he would be willing to risk his health to represent the United States. However, the matter of American representation at the meeting is being handled by the president.

It is realized that if Hull does not attend the conference, there may be renewed charges that he is opposed to cooperation with the Soviet Union. However, those familiar with the secretary's views know these charges are untrue. The diplomatic files of the state department, when finally published for the benefit of historians, will show that in his instructions to his staff, and in his conversations with the British and other Allied representatives, the secretary has repeatedly urged the strongest possible cooperation with Russia during and after the war.

STOCK MARKET CONTINUES ON PRICE UPSWING

Fractional Increases Again Rule List During Early Buying Activity.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Fractionally higher prices were the rule in today's early stock market proceedings.

On the upside at a moderately active opening were Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, Chrysler, Continental Can, Commercial Investment Trust, J. I. Case, Oliver Farm, Wilson & Co., U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Loew's and Anaconda.

Cheering to holders of merchandising issues was the Dun & Bradstreet survey disclosing that, despite competition of the big bond drive and mid-September tax payments, this week's retail spending throughout the country expanded briskly and topped the like period a year ago by 5 to 9 per cent.

CHICAGO—(AP)— Grain futures were fairly firm at the opening today, with demand for feed grains still a leading factor.

Wheat opened unchanged to ⅜ higher, Sept. $1.48; oats were ⅛ lower to ⅛ higher, Dec. 74 and rye was off ⅛ to ⅛ up, Sept. 1.05⅞.

THEATERS

The Sky's the Limit.

Giving agile Fred Astaire his most likeable role in years, RKO Radio's "The Sky's the Limit" teams him for the first time with Joan Leslie. The picture which opens tomorrow at the Ohio theater is a sprightly tale of a Flying Tiger on a brief leave in New York city. Robert Benchley heads the supporting cast as a millionaire publisher and Miss Leslie's employer, the heroine being a roving photographer for one of Benchley's magazines. Freddie Slack, former boogie woogie pianist with Jimmy Dorsey, and his band play the tunes by Johnny Mercer and Harold Arlen.

Hers to Hold.

"Hers to Hold" opening tomorrow at the Madison theater costars Deanna Durbin and Joseph Cotten in a romantic drama of a flier and the girl he loves. A portion of the story's vivid love theme is enacted against the background of a real plane factory, the huge Vega company in Burbank, Calif. Songs which Deanna sings in the picture include the popular "Begin the Beguine," "Kashmiri Song," "Say a Prayer for the Boys Over There" and "Seguidilla" from Carmen. Also showing is "Report from the Aleutians," a government-sponsored film telling of the vital importance of the Aleutians in our war policy.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Finds Checks—Donald Housman, 135 Park avenue east, yesterday turned $240 worth of travelers' checks over to police, explaining he had found them in a dairy store on Franklin avenue.

In Court Saturday—Arrested yesterday for driving 50 miles an hour on Park avenue west, Irving E. Almendinger of Ashland was told to be in municipal court Saturday morning on a speeding charge.

Check Break-In—Police today were investigating a breaking and entering last night at the Canfield Oil company's bulk station on First avenue. The rear door was forced open, but a report of the stolen property was withheld pending a check of the station.

Cars Burglarized—Two motorists told police last night that their cars were burglarized on Mansfield streets. Delmar Oney, Shiloh R. D. 2, said five $25 war bonds and his gas ration books were taken from his automobile on North Main street, while Roy Penge, 480 Bowman street, reported that his gas ration books and a flashlight were taken from the glove compartment of his car on East Fifth street near Adams street. Neither car was locked, police said.

Driver Held—George W. Riggleman, Mansfield R. D. 2, pleaded guilty in municipal court today to a charge of failure to stop after an accident, but Judge H. H. Schettler said he would not dispose of the case until Saturday, giving police more time to investigate the case. Riggleman's car was involved in an accident last night on Wayne street with a car driven by Myrtle Ward, Seventh avenue.

Youthful Driver Cited—Released from General hospital where he was treated for injuries received in a traffic accident Tuesday night at East First and Foster streets, Tom J. Blandi, 17, driver for the Service Taxi company, was turned over to county juvenile officers today on a charge of driving past a stop sign. The taxi he was driving collided with another car at the intersection.

FIFTH, EIGHTH ARMIES JOIN TO CRACK FOE LINE

Allies Establish Single Front In Italy By 3-Way Link, Take Albanella.

Gen. Eisenhower's communique said the Germans' efforts to reduce the Allied bridgehead "have weakened considerably," that air and naval support of the land fighters continued to be heavy and effective, and repeated Gen. Clark's declaration of yesterday that the Salerno position was now "firmly established."

During yesterday's action, an announcement said, prisoners were taken.

Both naval and air support for the fighting Americans and Britishers smashing into the explosive-torn foothills back of the Salerno landing beaches continued to be "excellent," a communique said.

American Liberators covered the target area with bombs yesterday, encountering no air opposition. British Liberators and Halifaxes hit supply dumps in the area during the previous night in a raid coinciding with one carried out by medium bombers of the African force.

The Northwest African Air command also sent medium bombers against enemy transports in the Auletta district Wednesday night while yesterday heavy and medium bombers ranged over highways, railway bridges and other points around Naples and Salerno.

Associated Press Correspondent Daniel de Luce, who reached Fifth army headquarters two days ago after a daring 100-mile trip through no-man's land in advance of the Eighth, reported the Germans had thrown few obstructions in the path of Montgomery's veterans.

Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's deputy commander-in-chief, stepped ashore in the Salerno area Wednesday, possibly to take personal command of the over-all operations in Italy.

A headquarters spokesman, summarizing the two-weeks campaign that began with Gen. Montgomery's landing on the Italian toe Sept. 3, said the Allies now have occupied three entire provinces of southern Italy, grabbed the three valuable ports of Taranto, Brindisi and Bari, and gained possession of a large number of excellent air bases, particularly in Apulia province where there are paved runways on which the heaviest bombers can operate at all times.

Although the thrusts up the east coast to Bari and the landing on the west coast at Salerno have established a firm grip as high as the ankle of the Italian boot, the Germans apparently still held a mountain bulge in the center of the peninsula.

British troops from Taranto remained in contact with the Germans at Gioja Del Colle, midway between Taranto and Bari, where units of the first German parachute division have been reported.

There was no information yet as to whether the junction of the Fifth and Eighth armies had compelled the Nazis to withdraw northward from the vicinity of Agropoli, at the southern end of the Fifth army's foothold.

(The German communique, recorded by the Associated Press from Berlin broadcasts, said Allied parachute troop attacks had been made in the German rear, but declared these troops were wiped out while declaring that "the enemy landing head at Salerno was still further compressed," the Germans admitted that the Allies had thrown fresh forces ashore and that Allied resistance near Eboli had considerably stiffened.)

Terming Clark's now successful landing as "most significant," an Allied headquarters spokesman said it proved "we can land a big army and strike hard in a defended area in the fortress of Europe. With German troops in close proximity who knew we were coming, the Fifth army landed and fought under conditions which the Germans always said would enable them to resist any invasion of the mainland—conditions upon which they based their superman claims."

Declares Pope Held Virtual Prisoner

BOSTON — (INS) — Pope Pius XII is virtually a prisoner in the Vatican and has been unable to communicate with the outside world since the Germans took over control of Rome, Jack Conway, of the Boston Evening American, wrote in a copyrighted article today.

There have been no messages received from the Vatican in the United States, Conway said he learned from high church authorities. Pope Pius, the article said, has been unable to communicate with any of the members of the American hierarchy.

Reveals 1941 Crisis In Mediterranean

LONDON—(AP)—A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, disclosed last night that late in 1941, the British Mediterranean fleet had only three cruisers left to meet the Italian navy had it dared to seek battle.

Alexander made his disclosure in a broadcast to the nation in which he described the surrender of the Italian fleet—Most of which now is in British hands—as one of the great turning points of the war.

Reviewing the situation in 1941, he said:

"The crisis in our misfortunes was reached in November and December. On Nov. 14 the aircraft carrier Ark Royal was torpedoed and sunk. On Nov. 20 the cruiser Sydney was sunk, on Nov. 24 the cruiser Dunedin and on Nov. 25 the battleship Barham.

"Shortly afterward the battleships Queen Elizabeth and Valiant were severely damaged and the cruisers Neptune and Galatea were sunk.

"In the Mediterranean (after those losses) we had three cruisers, yet our men carried on, working wonders . . .

"Fortunately the enemy did not know our precarious position and for vital months we managed to conceal the damage to the Queen Elizabeth and the Valiant and the sinking of the Barham."

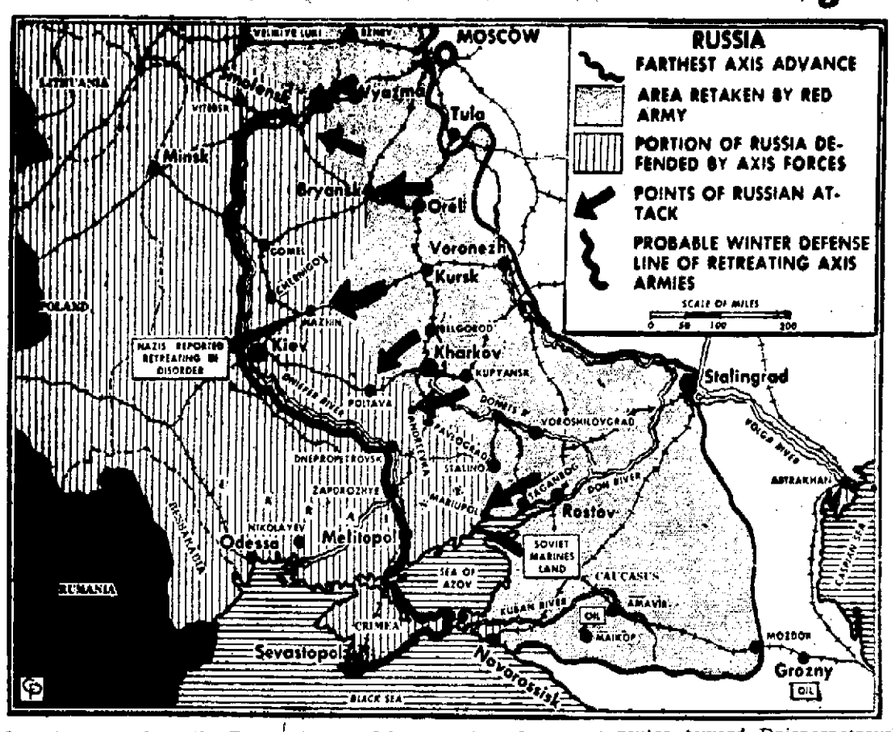
Italians Cut Key Brenner Pass, Claim

LONDON — (UP) — Pro-Allied Italian troops have cut the vital Brenner Pass railway near Bolzano, a "Free Milan" radio broadcast said today as Swiss dispatches reported that reinforced German parachutists have barred all devout from St. Peter's Basilica in Vatican City.

Italian infantry were reported by the Milan station to have occupied a long stretch of the Brenner Pass railway, Germany's lifeline into southern Italy, in a surprise attack in the Dolomites. All rail traffic was said to have been interrupted.

The Germans were estimated by the Nazi-controlled Turin newspaper La Stampa to have poured 500,000 troops into northern Italy for a stand against the Allies.

Germans Retreat Before Russian Onslaught



Latest reports from the Russian front reveal Red army troops have entered Bryansk with German rear guards fighting to delay complete Russian investment of the one-time Nazi bastion. New Soviet successes also menace German retreat routes toward Dnieporpetrovsk and Azov sea. In the latter sector, the Russians have captured the Black sea base of Novorossisk.

35 miles from the Dnieper river bend.

4. Storming of Nosovka, southwest of Nezhin, and 55 miles from the great middle Dnieper German base of Kiev.

The speed with which the Soviet columns were eating up German-held positions east of the Dnieper, encouraged the belief they might reach the river within the next few days, launch a drive against the White Russian frontier, 80 miles west of Novgorod Severski, force a German retreat from the Caucasian bridgehead above captured Novorossisk, and complete the investment of the citadel of Bryansk.

In all, a total of more than 225 towns and villages, many regarded as important strategically, were captured by the Russian armies during the day's advance, the Moscow communique asserted.

Appointed Clerk Of County Board Of Commissioners

The appointment of Lee Henry as clerk for the board of county commissioners was announced today by Guy Stewart, chairman.

Henry took over his duties today succeeding P. S. Carroll, who has been clerk for the past 10 years. Carroll was recently appointed county commissioner to finish the unexpired term of the late Ray Hout.

At the time of Carroll's appointment as commissioner it was decided that he would handle both the duties of commissioner and clerk. The responsibilities proving to be too heavy, Henry was appointed to take over the duties of clerk, leaving Carroll free for the commissioner's post, Chairman Stewart said.

The new clerk lives in Olivesburg where he has spent the greater part of his life. He was employed as a storekeeper at the Parsel Air depot before resigning to take this new position.

For more than 25 years Henry has been a partner in the Chamberlain and Henry store in Olivesburg.

siding in Steubenville. Rev. Peterson was former Mansfield district superintendent of Methodist churches.

Before his induction in June, 1941, Peterson was a teacher at York center (Union county) high school. He graduated from Officer Candidate school at Camp Davis, N. C., April 17, 1942, and went overseas four months later.

He was stationed in England before going to North Africa with the first Allied invasion forces. He was promoted to captain following close of the Tunisian campaign. He has since been reported in Sicily.

Peterson was well known in Mansfield tennis circles, holding the city and Woodlawn singles title in 1940. He also shared the doubles championship.

transporting animals to the fairground, it was said.

The county fair board, which sponsored the show, set up approximately $1,500 for prizes, but R. D. Hale, secretary of the board, said it wouldn't be necessary to use all of it because some of the show classifications were incomplete.

Two winners in the 4-H style revue at the fair will represent the county Saturday in a district show at Bucyrus. The Richland representatives will be Patsy Piper, member of the Snip and Stitch-It club in Madison township, and Glorene Hale of the Happy Health Home Makers club in Weller township.

The Madison township girl won a prize for the "dress-up" dress she made and Miss Hale took first prize for her complete costume.

Winners of other demonstration contests were Maxine Weaver, member of the Happy Health Home Helpers club, Weller township; Harold Hulit, Richard Wolford and George Fike, all Mifflin township club members. Miss Weaver demonstrated how to finish seams; Wolford and Fike gave a team demonstration of the proper way to mix feed for hogs, and Hulit demonstratetd the control of lice in poltry.

Because only six of the county schools were entered in the school display competition, it was agreed that the $90 prize money should be divided equally among them. Exhibits were shown at the fair by the Madison, Lucas, Bellville, Union, Onario and Shiloh schools.

First prize winners in the vocational agriculture classifications were:

Shropshire yearling ram, Wendell Litt, Bellville; yearling ewe, Duane Dunkle, Butler; aged ewe, Duane Kunkle; ram lamb, George Litt, Bellville; ewe lamb, Duane Kunkle; Hampshire yearling ram, Freeman Swank, Bellville; yearling ewe, Richard Clark, Shiloh; aged ewe, Freeman Swank; Southdown sheep, George Wheatcraft, Butler; ram lamb and ewe lamb, Donald Crunkilton, Butler; market lambs, Wilford Mead, Union school.

Hogs—Chester White gilt, Donald Gunkilton, Butler; Hampshire gilt, Robert Williams, Bellville; Spotted Poland China gilt, George Wheatcraft, Butler; Poland China pigs, Earl Kirkpatrick, Butler; Duroc pigs, Joseph Letizia, Lucas; Berkshire pigs, Keith McClelland, Bellville; boars, Robert Williams, Bellville; market hogs, Dale Blick, Butler.

Cattle — Guernsey, David Crunkilton, Butler; Jersey, George Wheatcraft, Butler.

Poultry — Leghorn pullets, Albert Grauer, Union school; Leghorns, (two pullets and a rooster) Harold Falk, Union school; Barred Rock, (two hens and a rooster) Ray Young, Lucas; Brown Leghorns, Edward Remy, Butler.

BROMFIELD HITS FOOD PROGRAM

Speaking last night at a national food conference in Chicago, Author-Farmer Louis Bromfield renewed his criticism of the national administration's handling of the food problem, asserting that the nation "needs a food administrator with power and authority to act in some sensible and coordinated fashion."

He called on the administration to "take food out of politics and appoint an administrator with qualifications of experience and ability rather than mere loyalty to the little group about the president."

Woman Told To Close Her Home And Keep It Open!

DENVER, Colo.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Effie Wilhite, a boardinghouse owner, found today that she has to decide whether a government agency has greater punishing powers than the Denver City Zoning board.

The city ordered her to close her house because it was in a restricted area, or pay a large fine, but the Office of Price Administration ruled that if she evicts any of her war-worker tenants, she will violate its regulations and will have to pay a large fine.

REPEATS VOW TO ROOT OUT WAR BREEDERS

President Also Reiterates Statement Victory's Far From Being Won.

ultimate victory in any major theater of the war."

He re-emphasized, in the strongest terms he has used to date, the intention of the Allies to completely destroy every vestige of the Axis, regardless of the cost or the time required.

After describing the fall of Mussolini as the "first break in Axis leadership," Mr. Roosevelt said he wanted to "make perfectly clear" that "when Hitler and the Nazis go out the Prussian military clique must go with them."

"The war breeding gangs of militarists must be rooted out of Germany—and out of Japan—if we are to have any real assurance of further peace," he said.

Analyzing the beneficial effect on Allied plans for blows against Japan of Allied success in clearing the Mediterranean, Mr. Roosevelt said "after a long period of defensive strategy in Burma we are determined to take the offensive there."

Saying that the fight in the Orient would be "long and difficult" and would be accompanied by heavy Allied losses, the president said "the power of Japan will not collapse until it has been literally pounded into the dust—it would be the utmost folly for us to try to pretend otherwise."

He went out of his way to encourage "the spirit of revolt against Nazi dominance in the satellite countries under German control."

"We have reliable information," he said, "that there is definite unrest and a growing desire for peace among the peoples of these satellite countries—Rumania, Hungary, Finland, and Bulgaria. We hope that in these nations the spirit of revolt against Nazi dominance which commenced in Italy will burst into flame and become a consuming fire."

Mr. Roosevelt devoted much of his message to calling attention to the mistakes of Adolf Hitler. Hitler's plans for converting Europe into an impregnable fortress had several seriously vulnerable points —the lack of a roof to guard against Allied air blows and "various other . . . spots . . . which we shall point out to him in due time," he said.

The president said that if Hitler does not at this time know that his power is being slowly destroyed, "inexorably, day by day . . . then the last trace of sanity has departed from that distorted mind."

He was high in his praise for the Russian campaign, which he said is moving "toward the elimination of every German from Russian soil—toward the invasion of Germany itself."

To emphasize the magnitude of the war effort and to pound home the idea that "there is no such separate entity" as the "home front," Mr. Roosevelt cited production figures to show that during the two months while congress was in recess American factories produced about 15,000 planes, with an especially "important" increase in heavy bombers, and 281 ships totalling 3,200,000 tons—about five ships a day.

He listed four reasons why the Allies still are some distance from ultimate victory in any major war theater:

"1—Despite our substantial victories in the Mediterranean, we face a hard and costly fight up through Italy—and a major job of organizing our positions before we can take advantage of them.

"2—From bases in the British Isles we must be sure that we have assembled the strength to strike not just in one direction but in many directions—by land and by sea and in the air—with overwhelming forces and equipment.

"3—Although our Russian allies have made a magnificent counter offensive and are driving our common enemies back day by day the Russian armies still have far to go before they get into Germany itself.

"4—The Japanese hold firmly established positions in an enormous front from the Kuriles through the mandated islands to the Solomons and through the Netherlands East Indies to Malaysia and Burma and China. To break through this defensive ring we must hit them and hit them hard not merely at one point but at many points, and we must keep on hitting them."

Canvassing plans for the war in the Pacific, Mr. Roosevelt said every day brings new air battles against the Japanese which result in much higher losses for the enemy than for the Allies, particularly over China and Burma.

"That process will continue until we are ready to strike at the heart of Japan itself," he said.

He said it goes "almost without saying" that after Japan surrenders she "is not to be trusted."

And the United Nations, he added, will "never again let her have authority over the islands which were mandated to her by the League of Nations" or the "vast territories" which Japan seized from China long before this war commenced.

The president said the war thus far has cost $128,123,000,000. From May, 1940, to Sept. 1, 1943, these instruments of war, he said, were made available to the armed forces of the U. S. and its allies: 123,000 airplanes, 53,000 tanks, 93,000 pieces of artillery, 25,942,000,000 rounds of small arms ammunition, and 1,233,000 trucks.

Since May, 1940, the president said, the United States has built 2,380 fighting ships and auxiliaries and 13,000 landing vessels.

Finn Peace Hopes Rise With Premier's Statement.

STOCKHOLM—(AP)—Peace sentiment in Finland was given a strong boost today through an announcement by Premier Edwin Linkomies identifying himself as the anonymous spokesman who was quoted as saying Sept. 11 that his country wished to withdraw from the war.

At that time, Linkomies declared Finland regretted being at war with England and desired peace with Russia if she could be assured of her pre-1939 independence and territorial status.

The Finns already have made informal peace overtures through the United States and Britain, but there has been no indications of a direct approach to Russia, which has insisted that Finland take the first step.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)—The Office of Price Administration last month established ceiling prices on cabbage seed to present a "dangerous" rise in prices.

Today the OPA amended regulation 455 (cabbage seed) by making it applicable to earlier seed crops as well as the 1943 crop.

The OPA has defined cabbage seed (brassica capitata) as "the seed used to grow cabbages."

HELL AND HIGH WATER

By William McLeod Raine

CHAPTER XXIV

Night had fallen long before Bob reached the rim rock. He was not sure that he had not missed Willie May in the darkness, but he thought it unlikely, since he had stopped to shout every few hundred yards. When he reached the fault in the rim rock he rode up the draw to the summit, as the girl had done several hours earlier. Here he fired his revolver twice and waited for an answer. None came. The silence of a vast empty space closed in on him.

The vague uneasiness that had oppressed him sharpened to a keen anxiety. He felt that some serious mishap had occurred. In the gloom of night there was little hope of finding Miss Broderick, but he could not bring himself to return to the ranch without her. He rode along the edge of the bluff, shouting at intervals and listening for a reply, then moved into the hills an eighth of a mile, to retrace his way parallel to the line he had come along the rim. While he was following his changing beat the moon came up. It was eleven o'clock when he drew up and fired the last shot in his .45.

At first he thought it was an echo that boomed back to him. But a second shot sounded after the first answer. With renewed hope he started in the direction from which the explosion had come. His horse dipped down into a little valley and ascended the opposite slope. A shout rocketed across the hill shoulder to him. A minute later he came face to face with Curt Simson.

Bob hurled at him the question crowding for an answer. "Did Miss Broderick come home?"

"No. We're out hunting her—the whole caboodle of us," Curt said.

A great heaviness descended on Lee. He had the strange feeling that at this very moment Willie May was calling on him for help. Inside of him he had heard the faint far sound of her voice. He heard himself shouting to her that he was coming. The voices inside of him died. He came back to earth and found himself facing Simson on the rocky hillside.

"We're to meet at sun up on Devil's Head to report," Curt was saying. "Unless we're lucky there won't be any good news to tell, looks like. Not much chance of finding her in the dark. Looks to me like she had been throwed from her horse and got hurt maybe."

That might be true, but what Bob feared was worse. All night he rode the tangle of hills. When dawn broke he obeyed orders and started to join the round-up of searchers at Devil's Head. He found himself covering ground he must have passed in the night. Though he was greatly troubled in mind, there was hope in him that some of the men might have stumbled on Willie May in the night.

Not far from the rim rock he topped a rise from which he looked down on a sight that ordinarily would have interested him much. Not far from him lay the body of a steer that had been butchered. During the night some animals had been eating at the carcass. When he rode closer he saw that someobdy had cut off a hind quarter, evidently for food. This was a rustler's work. Yet it puzzled him. No nesters lived near this barren bad man's land. To carry the meat for a long distance would be dangerous, since the thief might meet a range rider. There must be a camp within a few miles. The truth jumped at him as a sore bandaged thumb does to the eye. It was the camp of the Hickorys.

Thirty yards away something white fluttered in the morning breeze. He walked his horse to it and looked down. His heart stood still. It was a small square of linen, a woman's handkerchief. He dismounted and picked it up. Stamped on the cloth were the initials W. M. B.

He knew she had left it to show her friends that she was in trouble. Carefully he scanned the ground. There were tracks of two horses. His guess was that one of these had been ridden by a hunted man who needed beef, the other by a girl who by evil mischance had stumbled on him while he was at work. Whoever he was, he must have taken her with him.

When the bandits returned to the camp fire they were irritable and quarrelsome. Willie May's anxious gaze shifted from one to another. None of the Hickorys looked directly at her. She thought they avoided her eyes.

Bart said roughly. "You'd better get to sleep, girl." He added, accusingly "You've put us in a hell of a jam."

"If you'd let me go home—"

Angrily Jake cut off her suggestion. "You're not going home. You'll stay right here. If we're attacked it will be just too bad for you."

Rush Greer had his say. "Don't you worry, Miss Broderick. There won't any harm come to you while I'm alive." He spoke in a low, surly voice audible to them all.

The girl knew there was a promise in it. She looked at the red-bearded ruffian gratefully. According to the code by which she lived he was a scoundrel, but he had his own standard and had served notice that he meant to live or die by it. In him there burned a small flame of self-respect that could not be blown out while there was breath in him.

Jake Hickory glowered at him, menace in his black beady eyes. "A fellow can't always tell how long he's gonna be alive."

Greer stroked his flaming beard and looked at Jake steadily. "That's so. He can't." Out of his Bible-trained youth, long ago lost of evil living, he recalled a verse of Scripture. "They gather themselves together against the soul of the righteous, and condemn the innocent blood . . . And he shall bring upon them their own iniquity, and shall cut them off in their own wickedness; yea, the Lord our God shall cut them off."

Cass stared at him surprised. His teeth showed in a mocking grin. "I've heard of the devil spouting the Bible," he fleered.

Greer's parents had been Scotch Presbyterians. He had "gone bad" and flung away the simple religious faith that had determined their way of life. But there was still in him the dour stiffness of his ancestral blood. He would let no man drive him along a path he did not choose to travel.

"Think shame of yourselves," he said bluntly. "Here a lass comes to us out of the night with no evil against us in her heart. Our lives are forfeit, every one of them. For years we've known that. I thought ye were men, ready to take the chances you've brought on us. Instead, I find you a pack of skulking coyotes. To save your dirty skins you would deal harm to this maid. By God, I won't have it. I'll sit here the night through and watch you don't lift a hand to her."

He had dragged into the open the scarcely concealed threat to the girl's life. She had guessed at it but now she knew. Inside she was shaking like a jelly. He was one against three. If they decided to destroy her how could he stop them?

But she knew he would not yield. In spite of her fear she clung to the strength in this ugly misshapen outlaw who had flung out so bold a defiance to them.

"We don't allow to hurt her, if her friends keep their hands off'n us," Cass retorted sulkily.

"What kind of men are you that want to hide behind a woman's skirts to save themselves?" Greer demanded scornfully. "Is it the Indian blood or the white in you that runs the color of water?"

"Shut yore trap, Rush," sputtered Jake. "We're three to one, and we've had enough of you. You're yelping for trouble."

"But I doubt I won't get it while I'm looking. You know that even if you riddle me I'll get one of you before I'm killed."

This was probably true, for all gunmen know that a resolute man, even if shot through the heart, has one strong half-second in which to send a bullet crashing into his foe before the shock reaches him sufficiently to destroy the co-ordination between mind and muscle.

Greer stood there, barrel-chested and bowlegged, facing the three brothers, who formed a half-circle around him as snarling wolves do waiting to pounce on their prey. They were men who ill brooked opposition among their associates. Usually the threat of their united anger was enough to discourage it. But there was something frightening in this heavy impassive face, set to immovable resolution, that warned them to be careful.

This situation had jumped at them before there was any need for it to reach a crisis. Jake had not proposed immediate harm to the girl. He had only pointed out that her presence was a danger and that, if their enemies crowded them, they would have to get rid of a witness whose evidence could destroy them. Instantly Greer had declared himself. Under no circumstances would he let her be hurt. His life was long ago forfeit, as he had told them bluntly, and he would not add the crime of injuring this young woman to his sins or of letting them move one step against her.

"Don't go crazy with the heat, Rush," Jake advised, curbing his rage. "We don't aim to treat Miss Broderick in any ways bad. No use quarreling with us about it. We're all friends here."

The redbearded man shrugged his heavy shoulders and made no answer. He knew how far the friendship of the Hickorys went. If it ever advantaged them at all they would not hesitate to pump lead into his body. They were suspicious as well as violent by nature. Treacherous themselves, they were always looking for the same quality in others.

He made a pot of strong coffee and drank several cups. During the night he meant to keep awake and watch. His judgment was that the girl was safe enough for the present, but the Hickorys were not dependable. They were the more dangerous because they lacked the cool nerve to wait until it was necessary to kill. During the past few hours they had done a good deal of drinking, which always tended to make them more reckless. He had defied them, raked with contemptuous scorn their pride. As long as he was in their company he would live in constant danger. Until he could break away from the outfit he had to watch warily every minute. On his own account, more than hers, it might be fatal to fall asleep.

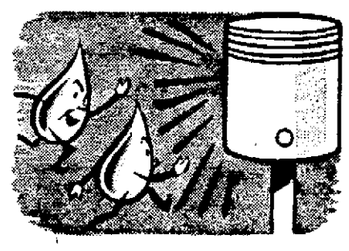
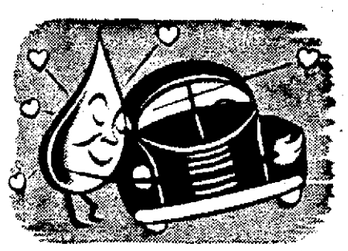
IS RATIONING GARAGING YOUR CAR for longer periods? If so, look out. It means oil has more time than ever to drain down from, or dry off of, cylinder and piston walls, leaving them without effective lubrication when you start up.



IT TAKES TIME FOR THAT OIL to get back to those vital engine parts. That's why automotive experts say you can put as much wear on your motor in the first minute after you start up, as you would in up to 200 miles of normal, warmed-up driving.



V.E.P. ALLOYED-OIL "STAYS PUT." This entirely new, different oil has a "magnetic-like" action, which makes it cling to cylinder and piston walls for weeks at a time. No matter how little you drive, lubrication is there when and where it's needed.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1943.

That record salvage quota set for Mansfield hadn't ought to be too difficult to reach. After all, we're up with the national average in war bond purchases and the Red Cross wouldn't have had storage space for another pint of blood if there'd been someone to give it.

Germans and Slavs

HOW HISTORY repeats itself! Here is an appeal addressed by the Czechs to the Poles, urging them to join in combating their common enemy, the Germans:

"If we should be defeated in the present conflict, the greed of the Germans would reach even further, and they would be after your lands, too. We are for you, as it were, a protective outpost; and if we are unable to hold out, you must then face the danger that threatens you; for their greed would not be satisfied with conquering us, but your Polish domains would be subjected to unbearable hardships."

This sounds like the Munich days of 1938, when Hitler raided Czechoslovakia and Poland did not come to the rescue. Instead this is an appeal addressed 665 years ago, in 1278, by the king of Bohemia to his kinsman and neighbor, the king of Poland.

Though the earlier plea received no better answer than that of 1938, the 13th century Czechs were fortunately able to maintain their independence. There is new hope that their 20th century successors can soon put their country back on the old path.

Italian Courage

THE ITALIANS lately have been redeeming themselves. It was never fair to accuse them of cowardice, when they were fighting in a cause which they knew was wrong and against their country's interest. Now that they have something to shed their blood for, they are showing how Italians can fight, even in the face of great handicaps.

From Chiasso, on the Swiss-Italian frontier the other day, came a memorable report. So fierce was the determination to expel the Germans that Italian troops armed only with bayonets charged in masses against German tanks, and 6,000 out of 8,000 were killed in one engagement alone. There and elsewhere, according to many accounts, they have been fighting like heroes in spite of their handicaps, until overwhelmed by superior power and weapons. At Parma, when the fight became hopeless, 33 Italian officers took their own lives rather than surrender. In Trento, which was held by the enemy, they roamed the streets hurling hand grenades, and cutting high tension wires to drop on the German tanks.

Now that Italians feel the breath of freedom, they may yet give a very good account of themselves. And it would be nothing new for them. They were free men for ages when the Germans, now so haughty, were enslaved and fighting as hirelings in foreign armies.

Ship Names

CHAPLAINS do a lot of hard and useful work, and do not get much recognition for it. It is a good sign, therefore, when the Maritime Commission announces that a Liberty ship is to be named for the late Rev. Francis P. Duffy, chaplain of the "Fighting Irish" regiment of the Rainbow division in the last war. Father Duffy brought happiness and consolation to thousands of soldiers during his military service; he also brought what is almost as important and perhaps rarer, a sense of humor. He deserves to be commemorated.

The Maritime Commission is commemorating some other worth-while citizens. They range from Adolph Lewisohn, the New York City philanthropist, to Lewis Emery, jr., a pioneer Pennsylvania oil operator who championed the rights of independent producers. Emery also bore the standard of good citizens in an unsuccessful race for governor towards the beginning of the century.

Ship names are better than epitaphs for preserving fame. They are seen by more people, and are more apt to carry conviction of the worth of the names they bear.

Bond of Education

OUTSIDE of fighting the war, perhaps the most important thing the United States can do is to strengthen its friendship with Latin America. Any move in that direction on the part of the Latin Americans themselves is particularly welcome.

Such a move has been made by the republic of Panama. That country's national assembly has established an inter-American university, open to students from any country in North or South America. The nucleus will be the already existing University of Panama. Situated at the meeting-point of the two continents, Panama is an eminently fit location for such a university.

Chile has already announced its support. President Rios says that his country will contribute a professor of civil law to the faculty. Other countries no doubt will follow suit. The United States should be among them.

Bears and Tires

IF RED TAPE stands in the way, go around it. That is the moral of a story concerning the Big Prairie, Tex., tire ration board. A motorist with a blow-out applied for another tire because he needed it to transport a bear from San Antonio to the Phoenix, Ariz., zoo. Without the tire, neither he nor the bear could leave Big Prairie.

"Nothing in the regulations," replied the chairman, "lists the transportation of bears as essential."

"O. K," returned the motorist, "then I'll have to turn the bear loose."

He got the tire, and American resourcefulness was proved again. That ingenuity is licking the Axis today.

More Than She Needed

THE STATE of Utah recently decided to increase old-age pensions. The old folks living on them needed more in these days of the high cost of food. So up went the rates from $30 per month to $40. The amount, even at the new rate, does not seem excessive, but one woman returned her check to an astonished state welfare office. She never had spent more than $30 a month, she said, and what in the world would she do with $40? There's thrift and contentment for you.

If the Nazis crack up soon, it will show they are not what they cracked themselves up to be.

Hitler Move to Put Mussolini Back In Power Should Aid Allies

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

ONE OF THE FINEST services Fuehrer Hitler could render the Allies is his revival of the fallen and dishonored Fascist regime under the control—or so the Nazis say—of its old master, Mussolini.

The United Nations had carried out their aim of smashing fascism. The collapse of the incompetent and corrupt government exposed the Fascist rule to the world for exactly what it was—a dictatorship of gangsters who not only waged cowardly war on small and helpless countries, and against their grievously wounded neighbor, but made themselves and their mistresses vastly rich by plundering their own people.

The vast majority of Italians, while heart-broken over the straits to which their country has been reduced by Mussolini's wickedness and stupidity, nevertheless have been rejoicing that they finally have been rid of this nasty old man who personifies the "soft underbelly of Europe."

Now along comes the arch gangster of them all and sets up a little puppet government in the name of Fascism. He tries to give it life by announcing that Mussolini himself is the Quisling of this revival—a statement which certainly requires ocular proof before the world will accept it as truth. At this writing the whereabouts of the ex-dictator is a great mystery.

Anyway, dead or half alive in his terror, the Duce's usefulness is about the same. This puppet "government," which is a stage-play affair, will drag out its brief existence, to provide a further striking demonstration of the folly of Mussolini's Fascist fancies. It will clinch the argument for the overthrow of Fascism and Naziism and the establishment of democracies in their stead.

Why is Hitler thus exhibiting Fascism in its nakedness and so taking the chance of weakening his own dictatorship? Well, there are several reasons, all of them understandable. In the first place he is, of course, playing for time, and so is trying to fool the world for a brief period into the idea that Fascism really isn't dead at all but is still a potent influence and a tower of strength to the Axis.

The all highest is particularly anxious to convey this impression to the Balkans. He is trying frantically to prevent further disaffection among his Balkan satellites, whose allegiance to the Axis has been due in considerable measure to Italian influence. He also wants to reassure his home front that all is still well in the Axis camp. And he figures that his ruse may provide some discouragement for Allied peoples.

It is a stunt which the Nazi dictator scarcely would try under normal circumstances. However, he is fighting with his back to the wall to save his own position. He can't have the slightest expectation of putting Fascism back on its feet permanently, or of preventing the Allied conquest of Italy.

Still, he is gambling that he may create a delay, and hesitation in the enemy camp, which may enable him to discover some fresh ray of hope. His position has become so grave that in undertaking this dramatic propaganda he really has little to lose and everything to gain.

Time is Hitler's ally right now. Already the autumn rains have begun in Russia, and this may give his desperate armies a respite from the disastrous hammering they are getting from the Red forces. Every passing day lessens the danger of an Allied invasion of western Europe, because of weather conditions. Each hour that he can hang on enables him to repair broken fences.

Looking at the matter from that light, Hitler's scheme is a smart one.

Dave Boone Says:

MOST everybody in America paid something on this year's last year's next year's tax (or however you explain it), but that queer, befuddled, faraway look is still in their eyes.

* * *

The funny thing about it was that at the beginning the tax experts in those federal information bureaus who were assigned to explain the tax had a fair understanding of it, but toward the end they were all confused, too.

* * *

It sort of gives you the creeps when you think a great country that takes on the great job of winning a war can't devise some simple income tax system that a man can fathom without seeing his lawyer, his psychiatrist, a soothsayer, a couple of mathematicians and Emil P. Tozzle's famous book, "The Charm of Jigsaw Puzzles."

* * *

Everybody realizes that the income tax is necessary. What they want to know is why daffiness should be compulsory.

* * *

That battle around Salerno, however, makes tax squawks seem pretty trivial stuff, and it certainly should help push the war bond drive over the top.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Monday, Sept. 17, 1923.

Annual convention of the Ohio State Federation of Labor opened in Mansfield.

Samuel Lantz, 73, well known contractor, died at his home, 244 East Second street.

Miss Gretchen Peppard went to Oberlin to enter college.

Roy Isch moved from 35 Vennum avenue to Springmill street.

Constitution day meeting was held at G. A. R. hall, with principal address by Charles H. Workman.

Charles N. Kuhn and family moved to 135 Wood street from a farm north of Mansfield.

Rev. Sager Tryon was returned to pastorate of United Brethren church here after having served as conference superintendent.

TODAY IN HISTORY

The federal Constitution was adopted Sept. 17, 1787, by the convention which had been deliberating in Philadelphia since May, and was ordered submitted to the units of the new nation.

It started a fight in nearly every one of the 13. However, before the following May, all had ratified it.

It Says Here:

—By D. K. W.

NOW there's so much coffee in the United States the importers say they'll probably have to burn a part of it or dump it in New York harbor because there's no place to store it. It seems that a nice patriotic gesture would be to give it to the government for use in service camps.

* * *

But, of course, that wouldn't be making any money. It's better to throw the stuff away and keep the price up—even to the army and navy whose valiant fighting have made the imports possible.

* * *

And another thing: how come, with a shortage of shipping to war areas, there's space to import more of a commodity than we need? Probably that's one of those things the "little people" who pay the bill aren't supposed to understand.

How It Started

"Gypsy."

Wandering sons of fortune, homeless children of the world, vagabond race and survival of nomad populations of Eurasia—gypsies.

The beginnings of the gypsy are obscure. His progenitors appear to have come originally from India. The descendants are to be found in almost every portion of the globe—on the side, as will be seen—of the United Nations.

The gypsies seem always to have gotten themselves in wrong. Every their name is a corruption. We have it from "Egyptian," which they were first thought to be.

Mrs. FDR's Australian Trip Blocked Willkie Voyage There

WASHINGTON—There's an interesting angle about Mrs. Roosevelt's trip to Australia which only the Australians, the White House and Wendell Willkie know about. It is the fact that Willkie was invited first.

"I guess I am partly responsible for the First Lady's Goodwill Voyage," he recently joked to a high-ranking Republican friend.

What happened was that the Australian minister for external affairs, Herbert V. Evatt had several talks with Willkie urging him to pay a visit to Australia. Then the president, hearing about this, stepped into the picture to have Mrs. Roosevelt go. Apparently he wanted to head off Willkie.

Minister Evatt's conversation with Willkie began some time ago during one of his trips through the United States to London. He told Willkie that it was important that the Australian and American peoples get to understand each other and that, working together as a team, they could dominate the Pacific after the war.

Willkie said he would be delighted to make the trip if it were cleared with the White House and State department. Evatt said he would arrange for all this, including the transportation.

This was the last Willkie heard about the matter until he got a phone call at his old home in Rushville, Ind., the other day from an Australian newspaperman. He told Willkie that when the Australian government had taken the matter up with the White House, President Roosevelt suggested that Mrs. Roosevelt go instead. Naturally, the Australian government had to bow to the president's wishes.

Note: High-up Republicans who know about the White House play are more certain than ever that the president is going to run for a fourth term. They figure that he did not want Willkie grabbing the international spotlight by a trip to Australia. However, White House intimates still are not convinced that the president will run again.

Gravy Specialists.

CAPITOL HILL gravy specialists do a lot of tricks with the taxpayer's dollar. Sometimes they quarter relatives on the payroll, sometimes they pay others for not working, and negotiate salary "kickbacks."

But here is the latest wrinkle, this time from the office of Representative Lawrence Smith, Republican, of Wisconsin.

Congressman Smith has an employee on his payroll who is also a member of the Wisconsin State Assembly. He is Ora R. Rice, listed as a clerk on Smith's office staff at $1,500 a year. Thus Rice knocks down a Federal salary of $1,500 and then turns around and gets a state salary of $1,200 a year. He spends all of his time in Wisconsin on state matters, and what he does in Washington remains a mystery.

This isn't the only case of absentee payroll-padding in the Wisconsin delegation. Thomas F. Davlin, former state highway commissioner of Wisconsin, has been hauling down a $3,600-a-year salary as "secretary" to representative Harry Sauthoff, Wisconsin Progressive, since last February. Davlin worked only two weeks in the office in March, and has been A. W. O. L. ever since.

Asked about Davlin's whereabouts, Sauthoff replied blithely: "He's in Madison. But I expect he'll be down here before long in case you want to see him about something."

India and U. S.

DESPITE the Churchill visit and the impending campaign in Burma, conditions inside India still remain one sore spot where Anglo-American relations, frank and friendly as they are, could stand some cleaning up.

All of the president's special advisers have brought home more or less the same reports. They include: Laughlin Currie, member of the White House staff; ex-Undersecretary of War Louis Johnson; Special Ambassador Billy Phillips.

Latest evidence of Indian sore spots is a report to Leo Crowley, new Economic Warfare Administrator from his New Dehli representative, John Fischer, who writes:

"The government of India, the British army, and many Indian businessmen view the opening of an OEW (economic warfare) office here with frank and deep-rooted suspicion. This suspicion is not directed at us alone; it falls on all American representatives in India.

"The American Mission was established here in 1941 in the face of considerable reluctance on the part of the government of India. (Previously the United States had not been permitted even a consulate in New Dehli). The OWI, OSS and even Lend-Lease representatives have told us that they have been received here with open misgivings—and in the case of the first two agencies, sometimes with hostility. Before our arrival, the government of India raised a number of questions regarding our mission with the American mission.

"We have reason to believe that our movements have been under close observation, both here and in England, and that surveillance is likely to continue.

Reasons for Coolness.

THERE seem to be two main reasons for this attitude," Fischer reported to Crowley.

"1. The fear that American representatives may send to Washington, through channels not subject to British censorship, information concerning the internal situation in India. This, the government of India seems to believe, might stimulate American sympathy for the Nationalist movement and criticism of the government's ineffective administrative techniques.

"2. Fear of American post-war commercial competition. This concern seems to be shared alike by the British and many large Indian businessmen. It has been so pronounced that the Mission thought it expedient, shortly before our arrival, to assure the government that OEW activity in India is in no way concerned with trade promotion.

"To offset the cool attitude of the government of India, the American Mission has received us with a helpfulness and kindliness which has exceeded expectations . . . we are confident that despite all this we can manage fairly well, although patience and circumspection will be necessary."

Note: Previous Roosevelt emissaries to India had reported similar suspicion on the part of British big business, especially toward American ideas of greater home rule for India. Ambassador Phillips, Minister Johnson and White House Secretary Currie all seemed agreed that Indian troops would not do much real fighting in Burma unless they had a greater stake in the Four Freedoms to fight for.

ERNIE PYLE Roving Reporter

Back In Civilian Clothes and Headed for a Rest, Ernie Writes Last Column Before 'Big Sleep.'

WASHINGTON—This is the last of these columns before we go on furlough. I've never looked forward to any experience in my life as I now look forward to a month of blank, utter rest.

I came across from Africa by Clipper. It was the third time I'd flown the Atlantic. Our trip was a special, unscheduled one, bringing a planeload of navy men back from Africa for schooling and new assignments.

The sailors made good traveling companions. They were all regular navy men, tattooed with everything from coiled snakes to tombstones, but they were nice guys.

On the long stages of the homeward journey the sailors would help the stewards carry out the dishes after our meals. And as the sailors slept in the chill air of the high altitudes, the stewards would carefully cover them with blankets. It was sort of touching.

There were no bunks, so we all slept on the floor or in our seats. Most of the sailors crossed the ocean and arrived in New York in their blue work dungarees, although some did change to whites just before we arrived.

At one of our stops a spectator asked, "What are these boys, survivors from a torpedoed ship?" Actually, none of them was. They were all skilled craftsmen being sent home to study a little and then go to sea again with new ships.

One of the pleasures of being back in America is that I have to make only one copy of this column. Over in Sicily I was making seven copies of every one.

I'd send two copies by courier plane from Sicily back to the headquarters city—one copy for transmission, the other for the censor's files. Then next day I'd send two duplicates, just in case the first set got lost, which it sometimes did.

Those four copies were in abbreviated cable form. Then, in addition, I'd make three copies in full form—two to be sent to Stars & Stripes, which publishes this column, and one to keep for myself, just in case everything got lost.

Two or three times everything did get lost, but it was always so long afterward before I found it out that the columns weren't any good by then anyhow.

During these few days that I'm writing here in Washington, I just write a page and walk over and hand it to my boss. I'm trying to work up to the day when I can get him to write it for me, and then I'll have the literary situation reduced to the irreducible and utopian minimum—I won't have to make any copies at all!

In Washington I did something that millions of soldiers would give an eye-tooth to do. I put on civilian clothes.

The only suit I have in the world is in London. But a year ago last spring I'd left some bags in storage here in Washington, so I delved into them looking for odd pieces of civilian raiment. I found two old sports coats with the elbows out, but no pants at all. Since I am not blessed with the right kind of legs to justify going around the streets of Washington without pants, I had to go out and buy a new pair.

Also I splurged on a new hat and new pair of shoes. Now I am a sight for sore eyes. I'm so handsome I haven't been able to tear myself away from the mirror. Wouldn't it be funny if I spent the rest of the war just standing before the mirror, looking at myself?

My lost pocketbook has been returned. It came in the mail, from Wilmington, Del. It was nicely wrapped in tissue paper, with brown paper around that, and neatly addressed in pen and ink.

All my credentials and private papers—my correspondent's card, my inoculation list, my Short Snorter bills, my last war discharge, even a British one-pound note—were all there, all intact. But the hundred bucks in American money was gone.

I'm grateful beyond words for the return of the wallet and the credentials. And it's comforting to know that our thieves are honest thieves. And what would I do with a hundred bucks if I had it?

* * *

That's all, now, for quite a while. Take care of yourselves. And please don't wake me up till October.

Listen World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

What Do You Want?

THAT'S the question that is hounding you these days; heckling your tired brain and discouraged heart.

"Why should I matter—one little person like me—in all this huge world?" you say to yourself. "Why should my little troubles matter? Nobody cares about me or my troubles. Nobody has the time or the heart to care.

"Everybody's out for himself these days. Power—that's all that counts. Power and wealth. Doesn't matter how crookedly you got 'em. Doesn't matter how cruel or selfish or unfair you are, if you've got the pull and the place, you count. And if you haven't, you don't. I never had the breaks and I never will have them. I was licked before I started. And nobody cares. FOR I DON'T MATTER! There's the terrible truth that I've been trying to duck all my life, but I've got to face it at last. I DON'T MATTER."

Is that what you've been thinking of yourself these days—yes? Then don't!

For you're wrong—YOU DO MATTER!

You matter not only to yourself but to the world—to the race.

You matter as much as you thought you mattered long ago in those proud, hopeful, excited days before you were 20. Do you remember those days? Down in the dumps one hour; up in the heights the next. But never for a second did you doubt that you mattered. Never for a second did you doubt that you had wonderful secret powers; that you were "different"; that some day you would make good and "show 'em all!"

You laugh at those dreams now. Perhaps you sneer at them.

YET THAT DREAMING YOUNGSTER WAS RIGHT!

He was right when he felt that he mattered—that he was really a "blessed event." For stop and think what went to the making of that youngster who was you.

Now you are saying, "I'm just a poor carpenter out of a job," or "I'm just a little stenog, and who cares whether I die or not?"

But that's not so. You're more—far more—than "just a poor carpenter" or "a little stenog." You're a harvest of the ages!

Billions of lives have gone to the making of YOU! Countless generations of men and women have lived and died, struggled, suffered, battled, prayed, worked, slept and sacrificed, that you might be what you are and where you are today.

You think this is a cruel world? Think of the appalling cruelty of this world, where men still lived by the law of the wolf and baboon.

But out of all that blundering came wisdom. Out of all that battling came courage. Out of all the suffering came kindness—and a dawning sense of decency and justice.

And out of everything came YOU. All that they were, all that they did, lives on in you today.

Just a common little person who doesn't matter? No, my dear; you are the hope and the harvest of all those defiant generations who, though dead, still live on in—YOU. You are their masterpiece. You are latest challenge, hurled by mankind against the Powers of Darkness.

YOU CARRY THEIR TORCH!

air strength in this theater is now greater than ever."

Meanwhile the Allied pincer on the doomed Japanese base at Lae, south of Wewak, closed tighter.

Ground forces approaching Lae from the west overcame a pocket of resistance at Edwards plantation on the Markham Valley road, with heavy losses to the Japs. The northcast jaw of the pincer movement seized the Malahang anchorage just south of the Malahang airdrome.

Escorted attack bombers strafed 35 to 40 Jap barges in a sweep along the New Guinea coast from Madang to Finschhafen, sinking 15 and destroying or seriously damaging the remainder.

The Jap base at Finschhafen was attacked by heavy reconnaissance bombers which blasted buildings areas and started large fires.

West of New Guinea, medium bombers carried out a destructive raid on Amboina island in the Netherlands East Indies.

Heavy bombers rained 27 tons of explosives on Kendari in the Celebes islands, blasting the building, dock and airdrome dispersal areas.

Twelve to 15 enemy aircraft ineffectively raided Darwin, Australia, under cover of darkness spurt into the third day. They came immediately after American Flying Fortresses had made one of the heaviest daylight assaults of the war against port installations, docks and airports in the Bay of Biscay area.

On Sept. 6, the RAF bombed Munich, another major railroad tunnel into Italy. Munich is 350 miles northeast of Modane.

Two other major lines, through Gothard and Simplon tunnels, are closed to military traffic because they go through neutral Switzerland.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

I SWITCHED on my memory at Mary's question, and a fraction of a second later was ready to answer it

"I remember they were to be addressed to 'Jim' and to be signed 'Sam,'" I answered, and Mary, who was ruffling the leaves of the code book, smiled as she paused to look at a page before glancing up at me

"You and that memory of yours!" she exclaimed. I had a hazy idea that it was 'Jack' and 'Sim,' but your recollection is absolutely right."

Mary Terrorstruck.

She paused, and I saw the shadow in her eyes which sudden terror brings.

"Suppose we're too late with all this, Auntie Madge?" she said. "Remember, she's telling us that they're preparing to make her walk the plank when they're through with her And that other message she so cunningly got through to us in the letter she wrote at their instigation, but embroidered so cleverly, warned us that as soon as they got the information they wanted they would rub her out. Do you suppose that when they finally make up their minds that they're going to fail in getting that information about Jack Bickett, that they'll—"

Her voice trailed off, evidently unable to complete the sentence

I braced myself to encourage her with words that I was afraid were but sophistry.

"I don't think we'll have to worry about that for several days," I said. "They won't begin to realize the end is in sight until Steve Redfield and Milner and Ruth Hayes disappear as have some of the others.

"I thought Grandpa Spencer was planning to eliminate Ruth Hayes this afternoon," Mary said, puzzled.

"He may be," I admitted, "but I think rather that he is going to throw such fear of God into her that she won't dare report to Milner what has happened

"Father isn't losing sight of Marion in his zeal for uncovering the big criminals," I went on, trying to reassure myself as well as Mary. "And I know him well enough to deduce from his manner that he has for the first time a distinct hope of getting on her trail. So I think the best thing we can do is to get that 'personal' lined up so it will be ready for father when he summons us"

"Right you are!" she agreed, and bent over the code book, studying it for a few seconds. Then she looked over at me.

"I think we could begin the 'personal' addressed to 'Jim' with Marion's own phraseology at first," she said. "Remember, we put this phrasing in that other 'personal,' which this latest message tells us she received: "Received your shipment, okey.'"

"Oh, of course!" I said quickly. "For, as I remember it, those words mean 'Have received your letter, and have worked it all out according to the code"

"Exactly," she said. "So I'll put that down"

She wrote rapidly for a few seconds, then looked up at me.

"And now, what is necessary for her to know?"

I considered for several seconds, while Mary bit the end of her pencil, and stared into space.

Contents of 'Personal.'

"We want to let her know," I said, at last, slowly, "that the restaurant is going to be watched and her rescue attempted; that she can contact the man, Crump, safely; and that she must hold herself watchful and ready to rush from her captors to father's men at the first opportunity presented."

"That's quite an order," Mary said despondently, "to get over to her without their getting suspicious. And I haven't an idea in my head. Have you?"

"Only a faint glimmering of one," I said, and Mary laughed joyously

"It's as good as done!" she cried extravagantly. "I know you and your 'glimmerings' of old! But for the love of Mike and all the other archangels, don't hurry. Lie back, relax, go into the silence, and I'll bet you'll come out of it with the niftiest idea in seven counties"

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, September 18

TODAY'S ASTRAL aspects are of great significance in social, artistic and domestic relations, in which there may be more than ordinary functions or celebrations, this probably in appreciation of promotion, honors, preferment or favors from those in high places. It is a propitious time for seeking these distinctions, but with some circumspection in regard to subtle alliances or intrigue that might unfold doubtful denouements Likewise be cautious with writings or signatures.

Those whose birthday it is may hope for a prized promotion, honor, favor or token of preferment, with the friendliest of feelings from those in power and high standing There is likely to be much social celebration in honor of this distinction. In business relations sign papers cautiously and in all matters beware of entangling alliances which might in the end prove regrettable Aim high for worthwhile promotion or progress

After the diamond 2 was led to the K and A, South decided to go after the heart suit He led the Q to the K, and West returned the club 4 to the J and A.

Here is where South slipped With four trumps out, he reckoned he could drop them in two rounds, and so could afford to ruff a diamond in dummy and still be able to take two trump tricks there After the diamond ruff, he led the heart J East put on the A and South trumped with the spade 5 Playing now for the trump break he led the spade 6 to the A and then the Q If both had followed he could now have discarded all of his losers on hearts. But East did not follow putting on a diamond The heart 10 was then led for a discard of the last diamond, but West trumped and then scored two clubs to beat him.

After taking the third trick with the club A, South could have scored the spade K, led to the A and then launched the heart J. If East used the A, he could ruff, then go to dummy with the last trump and score hearts If East ducked, a club discard could be taken, followed by another heart for a second club toss which West would ruff with his final trump. That method would have produced an extra trick

A simple way to make the contract surely would have been to ruff a diamond on the second trick, lead to the club A, ruff a second diamond, score the spade A and lead a heart. This way nothing could be lost except the heart trick and two in clubs.

Tomorrow's Problem.

Harvesting Horseradish From the Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Ass'n.

Some people, particularly men, with a hankering for homegrown horseradish may have planted some in their Victory gardens this season and now want to know how to harvest the roots.

Horseradish, like asparagus and rhubarb, is really a permanent planting, which continues to grow year after year. As to harvesting, the best practice to dig up as many roots as desired before the ground becomes frozen hard, and store the dug roots in a cool cellar, covering them with earth or sand During the winter months as need, a root or two can be taken out and grated and used.

Horseradish plants will grow almost anywhere and will go on indefinitely. Replanting horseradish frequently, however, produces roots of better quality. Replanting is made possible by breaking off the small lateral roots when the large roots are dug for use. These are cut into pieces about four inches long, tied into bundles, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph and stored in sand until spring. When the soil has been prepared in the spring, the new horseradish roots can be planted four inches under the ground Cut the tops square and the bottom on a slant when the roots are removed from the parent roots so that at planting time the right end can be placed uppermost

This practice of replanting of horseradish not only improves quality but produces smooth, well-shaped roots, as illustrated, instead of small misshapen ones

What are you doing to help in Richland county's Third War Loan drive? The pictures above show what one club, the Flora Hedges club decided they could do to sell bonds. Out of the "white elephants" members donated for sale they raised more than $500 to put into bonds. The auction was held at Hedges school Tuesday afternoon and the proceeds of the sale applied to the women's division drive to buy two PT boats costing $145,000 each. In the picture at the left Mrs. J. M. Simpson, 144 Hedges street, president of the club, and Mrs. Christian Herrick, 128 Hedges street, vice president look over the list of items to be auctioned which Mrs. Herrick holds. The buyers gathering in for the auction. At the right Auctioneer Charles Robinson calls for bids on an army cot.

NEW TAX RATE FOR ASHLAND

Revised Schedule To Go Into Effect In December Next Year.

ASHLAND — Ashland County Auditor Lee Mills announced today that tax rates established on re-appraised valuations just completed in Ashland county will become effective in December, 1944.

The 1944 date was established due to the fact that Mills filed applications for an extension of time for completion of the re-appraisal when it became impossible to complete it in time to establish new tax rates for 1943.

It is practically assured that the applications will be granted under the act which became law Thursday providing auditors with authority to obtain extensions for re-appraisals.

About three months will be necessary to complete details of the re-appraisal, Mills stated today.

Informal balloting being taken in Ashland on city council's proposed change to Eastern Standard time for the winter months has resulted in a vote of 88 per cent for return of the "slow time" for the winter season.

Council will study the ballots Monday at which time legislation must be passed if the time change is to become effective during October.

In addition to the balloting, petitions are being circulated by council in Ashland industries to determine the sentiment of factory workers on the proposed time change.
